STRIVE TO WIN OVER CARRANZA

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—General Carranza may yet secure recognition as Provisional President of Mexico. It all hinges on whether his present stubborn attitude can be modified by his friends in Latin-America.

Pressure now is being brought to have him accept the appeal for a peace conference, prepared by the United States and Latin-America, in the friendly spirit in which it is framed. And despite the tone of defiance now manifested in the Carranza camp, President Wilson is understood to be hopeful that an agreement will be reached.

The appeal to the Mexican people probably will be sent forward late today. Secretary Lansing stated this afternoon that he hoped to clear copies to all American consular representatives in Mexico before the State Department telegraph room closes at 11 o'clock tonight.

Meanwhile the entire American situation was characterised by administration officials as showing "improvement." The pressure that is being brought to bear upon Carranza is declared to be having weight. It will be redoubled as soon ag the joint invitation has been presented.

TRY TO WIN CHIEF OVER.

Latin-American diplomats in Mexico City, who are convinced that Carranza dominates the situation, are the mediums in an unofficial program of persuasion. It was learned here today that they have been asked by their colleagues in this country to explain to Carranza that the quickest way for him to secure recognition is to agree to a peace conference along the lines to be suggested in the united appeal.

Inasmuch as he dominates the situation, controls a majority of the military chiefs and State Governors, he could out-vote all of the opposing faction if he would agree to enter a general peace conference. This will be plain to him and he will also be told that if he does so, then he will receive the whole-hearted support of the powers and can run he count.; to suit himself, putting his plan to govern the action along the lines that will suit the majority.

If Carranza will not agree to this arrangement, then an attempt will be made to have his generals abandon and act independently, Gonzales, at

Divide National Forest in Alaska

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Chugash national forest in Alaska today was cut almost in half by order of President Wilson. In a proclamation, the Executive returned to the public domain 5,083,000 acres of the forest reserve which is to be crossed by the new government railroad from Seward to Fairbanks.

Californian to Buy Cincinnati Reds, Is Report

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 13.—There is a strong rumor current here today to the effect that the Cincinnati National League club will be sold to Warren N. Carter of Pasadena, Cal.

Garry Herrmann, president of the Reds, refuses to deny or confirm the report. He declared he had nothing to say regarding the matter, and would not even tell whether or not negotiations were in progress for the sale of the club.

Bold Theft of $200 Painting from Harvard

A daring thief went into the first floor of the Peabody Museum, Harvard University, today and cut from its frame with a sharp knife, an oil painting valued at $200, entitled: "A Distant View of Moki-Pueblo." It was painted by Julian Scott in 1893. It was given by the Hemingway estate to the museum in 1894, and measures 36x26 inches. There is no clew to the thief.

This is the first theft recorded in years from a Harvard museum and certainly the most daring.

North Jamaica Has $10,000,000 Hurricane Loss

By International News Service.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Aug. 13.—Damage estimated at $10,000,000 was caused by a terrific hurricane that swept over the northern and northeastern coast of Jamaica last night and early today. Great banana plantations were completely destroyed. Sugar plantations suffered similar fate.

The violence of the storm decreased later today. So far as known there was no loss of life, but communication with many points is still cut off and the fate of some settlements is still in doubt.

Several Killed in Powder Explosions

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 13.—A Berlin dispatch states that several persons were killed by explosions following a fire in a powder works at Reinadorf, near Wittenburg, Germany.

Seven Track Hands Killed by Train

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 13.—Train No. 29 on the Middle Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad struck eight track hands just east of Mount Union early today, killing seven of them and fatally injuring the other.

BITING DOG SHOT BY POLICE

After biting a boy and two men in North Cambridge and two more boys in West Somerville a snarling, frothing fox terrier was killed with one shot by Reserve Officer Long of Somerville today in the basement of the Sprague-Hathaway picture frame factory on Day street, West Somerville. The body was returned to the Cambridge police for examination to determine if the dog had rabies.

The victims, as reported by the police of Cambridge and Somerville, are:

Henry Bresnihan, fifteen years, of No. 12 Pemberton street, North Cambridge, bitten on right thigh on Rindge avenue last night.

Fred Bolger of No. 431 Harvey street, North Cambridge, bitten in the Dix Lumber Company's yard on Harvey street, North Cambridge.

Frank Jones of Yorktown street, North Cambridge, bitten on right forearm in lumber yard.

Carl E. Carlson, nine years, of No. 8 Herbert street, West Somerville, bitten on right hand.

David E. Brown, six years, of No. 4 Chester place, West Somerville.

After the dog bit young Bresnihan last night it disappeared. At 7 a. m. today it ran into the Dix lumber yard and sent a score of workmen to cover in haste. But Jones and Bolger were bitten while trying to drive the dog away.

The dog disappeared up Massachusetts avenue toward Arlington, but swerved over into West Somerville, into Davis square. Arlington and Somerville police received the alarm.

Boys saw the dog dart into the Sprague-Hathaway basement and told Reserve Officer Long.

Portuguese Cruiser Ashore, Total Loss

By International News Service.

LISBON, Aug. 13.—The Portuguese cruiser Republica, which went ashore off Ericeira last week, is a total loss, it was announced today. Her guns were removed to other ships. The Republica displaced 1,625 tons. She was built in 1899 and carried a crew of 250 men.

TURIN, Aug. 13.—The Gazette Del Popolo learns that Dr. Bernhard Dernburg is now conducting a propaganda in Italy to gain the support of Socialists for the German cause. He has $40,000 at his disposal for this purpose.

PARENTS BEG "BABY DOLLY" TO COME HOME

Elvira Dolores Guidone, sixteen-year-old Hartford girl, who vanished Monday from a train bound for New York. Photo by International News Service.

Elvira Dolores Guidone, the sixteen-year-old Hartford, Ct., girl who disappeared while on a train from Hartford to New York, is safe in Boston today, according to a telegram received from the girl by her mother. This word came to Boston this afternoon from Hartford. The telegram was signed "Dolores" and said:

"I am well. Am leaving Boston on 8 o'clock train. Dolores."

The mother was inclined to doubt the message. She said she believed that, had her daughter been sending a message, she would have signed it "Babe," the name she always used in communicating with the family.

The Boston police were asked from Hartford to look up the sender of the telegram.

Before receiving the telegram from the missing girl, the New Haven and the New York police had begun a widespread search for the girl in the belief that she had been kidnaped by "white slavers."

Meanwhile the agonized parents, Dr. and Mrs. Raphael Guidone of Lincoln court, Washington square, Hartford, were appealing through the press for "Baby Dolly," as they call her, to come home without fear. The parents issued the following appeal today to the newspapers:

Baby, your father and mother are heartbroken over your disappearance and are waiting

AIRSHIP BOMBS KILL 6

By International News Service.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Six persons were killed and twenty wounded in another air raid which the Germans have made over England.

Official announcement of the raid was made today by the government press bureau.

Fourteen houses were destroyed or damaged by bombs dropped from the German aircraft.

The district raided was on the north seacoast, but the exact location of the regions damaged was not revealed.

It is supposed that the Germans attacked the shipbuilding yards around Newcastle and the arsenals and naval stations near the mouth of the Thames River.

The raid took place last night, although news of it was concealed for nearly twenty hours.

The last air raid was made by Zeppelins late Monday night and early Tuesday morning when fourteen persons were killed.

One of the Zeppelins taking part in last night's attack is believed to have been damaged.

Aeroplanes were sent aloft to give battle to the invaders, and a hot fire from high angle guns was turned upon them.

Man, 70, Dead from Gas in Rented Room

A man of about seventy, who hired a room last night from John L. Wilson at No. 1,184 Harrison avenue, Roxbury, was found dead in bed in his room today. Gas was flowing from an opened jet. Whether he was a suicide was a mystery. The man weighed about 135 pounds, was five feet and seven inches tall, had blue eyes and wore a blue suit, with white pencil stripe.

One Woman Lost and Many Men on Torpedoed Ships

By International News Service.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The Norwegian steamer Aura, 396 tons, has been sunk by a submarine. It is feared her crew of sixteen men were lost, as their rescue has not been reported from any source.

The British steamer Summerfield, 827 tons, has been sunk by a submarine, three persons perishing.

The engineer, the mate and the mate's wife were drowned.

Two members of the crew were injured. Seven men were rescued and landed today.

The British steamer Jacona, 2,269 tons, was sunk by a submarine early today. The captain and nine members of the crew were landed a few hours later.

The trawlers Thrush and Uvfry have been sunk by submarines. The crews escaped.

A German submarine sank the English fishing smack Humphrey today. The crew was saved.

O'Toole Believes Cancellations May Mean Peace

Andrew L. O'Toole of the F. J. O'Toole Company, grain exporters at the Chamber of Commerce Building, when asked for an explanation of the cancellation of war orders in this country, said:

"I don't believe that an explanation could be given on this side of the water—except possibly at Washington. It is a most mysterious affair.

"At first, when I had heard only of grain cancellations, I thought it meant that the Dardanelles were open to the allies.

"But the stopping of the shipment of horses and the reports of other war orders being cancelled puts another face on the matter. It may mean that peace is in sight. I most sincerely hope so."

Charge German with Sketching Defences

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Aug. 13.—August Orbolph, held here for arraignment on a charge of having made drawings of military reservations and lighthouses along the coast, claims German nationality, according to jail officers.

Orbolph was arrested by federal officers as he was boarding a train. He denied having made any drawings, Orbolph said he came to the United States two years ago.

Push Probe Against Russian General

LONDON, Aug. 13.—A commission of inquiry has been appointed, according to the Daily Mail's Petrograd correspondent, to investigate charges against General W. A. Soukho linoff, ex-Russian Minister of War, and others, in connection with the shortage of munitions which has seriously interfered with the operations of the Russian army.

PRICE OF WHEAT DOWN

A mystery of the European war which began with the sudden cancellation by agents of the allies of orders for over 2,000,000 bushels of grain at Chicago was increased with a local development today when all shipments of horses for the allies from Boston was suddenly stopped.

Two theories have been advanced by the industrial, military and financial centres of the country in effort to solve the secret of this new and startling move.

One theory—relating particularly to the cancellation of grain orders—is that the allies foresee the opening of the Dardanelles and the release of Rusian grains.

Another thery—based upon a sudden drop in sterling exchange—is that the credit of the allies is getting so impaired that they shrink from tieing up so much cash as is obligated in these war orders.

Boston business centres read today dispatches from Chicago relating to cancellation of colossal grain orders by agents of the allies.

But the local business men did not have to look farther than their own waterfront for home developments which showed the allies are stopping shipments of war stock as well as war foods.

NOTIFY LEYLAND LINE.

Since last September the Leyland line has carried thousands of horses to England for the allies. Without warning the loading of these war horses has ceased. The Leyland line today admitted that the British army officers who are superintending the transportation of horses in this country had suddenly notified the line that there would be no horses for boats sailing at this time.

The Cambrian sailed yesterday horseless. The Devonian sailed today without a steed. These two are the first Leyland liners to leave Boston without war horses since September.

The Leyland liner Devonian sailed for Liverpool today with a big contraband cargo, notwithstanding the lighthouses along the coast, claims German nationality, according to jail officers.

Orbolph was arrested by federal officers as he was boarding a train. He denied having made any drawings, Orbolph said he came to the United States two years ago.

TRY TO INDUCE CARRANZA TO YIELD

Mexico City, and Obregon, back in command of the chief field army operating toward Torreon, will be the two men whose influence will be most sought.

The latter, at least, might be persuaded to aid peace if Villa agrees to utterly eliminate himself, as the State Department has been told by General Scott that he can be influenced to do so in the interests of great peace. Refusal of Carranza to back up the proposal of Charles A. Douglas, Carranza's attorney here, that his agents here talk peace with the Villista representative, is not considered very serious.

ACTED WITHOUT ORDERS.

It has simply emphasized what Secretary Lansing said at the time, that the offer was an invitation to Villa and Zapata to sue for peace. It also shows that Douglas acted on his own responsibility instead of on orders from Carranza, in filing his brief with the State Department.

Villa's offer of an armistice, which his agency here utterly repudiates, also is accepted as mere for effect in the United States that anywhere else. Ever since Villa was defeated in the initial fighting at Leon, he has been in a receptive mood and has made various overtures toward Obregon, which have been promptly rejected. Villa can be handled in the interest of peace and so can Zapata.

Carranza alone is the stumbling block that this government is trying to devise means of dealing with.

Secretary Daniels officially announced today that there would be no further warship movements in connection with the Mexican situation until the diplomatic negotiations are ended, unless a serious anti-foreign crisis should develop.

He said that he understands Vera Cruz is quiet and that apparently all danger of trouble there is past. The army now dominates the situation in Texas so far as the frontier is concerned. Every point where marauders could cross is heavily guarded.

Unless Governor Ferguson should request federal aid, the War Department will permit the State authorities to deal with the bands that are now north of the international boundary. The War Department has no power to do more than enforce neutrality unless the State authorities grant specific authority.

MEXICAN RAIDERS BEING DRIVEN OUT BY TEXAS TROOPS

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Aug. 13.—Fighting between Texas Rangers and scattered bands of Mexican bandits continues, but the situation looks now to be well in hand, Governor Ferguson, who is at Rockport, telegraphed here today that the State forces were rapidly clearing out the Mexican raiders.

One bandit was killed near Mercedes last night, when he offered resistance upon being surrounded in a field.

United States cavalrymen and outlaws were engaged in a battle last night near Edinburg, Hidalgo County, Tex., where two Mexicans held up and robbed a farmer earlier in the evening, according to reports received here at midnight. The cavalrymen have gone for help.

W. Tomlinson, Ariz., Secret Service agents and other government officials in conjunction with the sheriff, began an investigation of what is believed to be a concerted movement among Mexicans in several mining camps of southern Texas.

Several shipments of arms and ammunition, it was reported, had been made to Mexican residents of Cochise and Pinal counties recently. A shipment of twenty-six rifles addressed to a Mexican, unknown to officers of the company, and other reported secret meetings of the Mexicans at Johnson Camp, seven miles from Dragoon, will be investigated.

Mines and Attacks Cause Danes Loss

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 13.—The losses sustained by the Danish mercantile marine through mines and torpedoes amounts to about 37,125,000, according to an official statement issued in Copenhagen. The statement says that losses through the detention of goods in England are estimated at nearly as much more.

Terror Reigns on Border, Says Governor Ferguson

By James E. Ferguson,
Governor of Texas.

To Editor of the Boston AMERICAN:

MY letter to President Wilson is really self-explanatory and was as follows:

"Knowing the many pressing matters confronting you, I have purposely delayed wiring you, hoping that Mexican border troubles might clear up. Conditions are now perilous and grave. Every twelve hours a loss of life or wounding of American citizens occurs.

"Texas citizens have been murdered, postoffices robbed and soldiers and rangers killed within the last week. The offenders are mostly Mexicans from across the border, and only a few are American citizens.

"I have increased our ranger force almost to the maximum and on account of the great area of disturbed conditions it is doubtful if I can much longer control the situation.

"I do not overdraw the picture when I say that a reign of terror exists on the Mexican border and any unusual occurrence would cause a disastrous invasion of Texas from Mexico.

"Your army is doing all that it can with the forces in hand to meet the situation, but the number of troops is wholly inadequate. A great service would be rendered if you could double the size of your army now on the Mexican border. For my guidance, I would appreciate an expression on the matter of a substantial increase of the army on the Mexican border."

I beg to add that additional troops are being furnished and the situation looks somewhat improved today. Should intervention or something similar occur a serious racial war would happen, and I was anxious for the President to know the necessity for additional troops to protect our people.

ENORMOUS WAR ORDERS TURNED DOWN IN U. S.

A canvass of leading manufacturers of the United States reveals an increasing number who refuse to accept war orders. Those who declare they will not prolong the European war and the orders aggregating $120,100,000 which they have turned away are as follows:

	COMPANIES	COST.
(1)—	Ford Motor Co.	$15,000,000

ALLIES CANCEL HUGE WAR ORDERS

officers told us there would be no horses for these orders. No explanation was offered. We have no horses booked for future ships."

Lack of horses is not the cause. There are thousands of steeds now in equine concentration camps at handy Eastern points—one is in Vermont—held ready for transportation to Boston and for shipping.

ALLIES' CREDIT MENACED.

Regarding the theory that the allies' credit is impaired, L. V. B. Rucker, New York, correspondent of the Boston AMERICAN, today discussed the matter as follows:

"International bankers admitted today that the credit of the allies in America is being seriously strained by the fall of sterling exchange. Continuation of the present movement, they declared, would result in serious curtailment of the supplies now being exported from America for England, France and Russia.

"When sterling exchange dropped yesterday to $4.72¾, it reached a new low record. The slump caused great surprise in view of the shipment of more than $50,000,000 in gold and securities since the war broke from England. Immense war bills are maturing in this country and bankers assert their credit facilities must be established quickly or the allies will be unable to place any more orders. Wall Street hears that many manufacturers have refused great orders because they have lost faith in war and accept notes running for at least a year.

"Russia floated bonds, but these have been accepted in few cases. While no banker will discuss the possibility of a complete collapse of European credit, it is general talk in Wall street that such a possibility has been frequently suggested.

TERRIFIC STRAIN.

"There is no question but that the European conflict has been a terrific strain upon the nations which have already cost billions of dollars and the immense costs mounts with every hour that the struggle continues."

Chicago grain operators were staggered by the heavy grain export orders. They easily figured that the Foreign Nations will take 50c on a war order profit of ten cents a bushel, were surrendering a total profit of $200,000 in cancellations of orders aggregating 2,000,000 bushels.

Discussing the situation, Price Chicago quoted James A. Patten, the former Board of Trade operator, as saying:

"If peace were in sight, Europe would still need wheat and she would have the credit to buy it. The cancellation of orders, therefore, would mean no more than one of two things. Either Europe has found a source of new supply, which means Russia; or Europe finds that she cannot pay."

It was said in Chicago that two of the largest firms which canceled contracts were the Armour Grain Company and the J. Rosenbaum Grain Company.

George C. Marcy, president of the Armour company, said:

"I am unable to understand what has happened that has put all at once something important or they would not have canceled purchases that show such profits and give them away. Possibly it is that the Dardanelles are to be opened, but we have no confirmation.

"England wants to hold her gold and by buying wheat in Canada and Australia she can use her credits and keep her gold with which to buy ammunition. If Europe does not buy our wheat freely it will mean much to us and make a great deal of difference in prices."

Emanuel F. Rosenbaum of the J. Rosenbaum Company said:

"Our own cancellations were not very heavy. It was about three days ago that the buying stopped. The European buyers started to beg out of their purchases, accepting a loss from eight to ten cents a bushel, I should say."

The cancellations had natural effect on the cash "pit" and brought the latest market dispatches from there today said that the cancellation proved the principal bearish factor of the early market. It caused free selling by longs and numerous short lines were put out.

Cables from Liverpool were ¾ to ¾d. lower. The lower prices in corn and oats were the result of sympathy with the lower trend of wheat, coupled with improved weather conditions.

On an excited opening at the Chicago Board of Trade today September wheat ranged from 110⅞ to 107⅜, compared with last night's close of 111⅛.

Gli Austriaci sono respinti a Monfalcone.

La Regina Per la Guerra

ROMA, 12 Agosto.—Inaugurandosi l'ospedale che la Regina Margherita ha preparato per i feriti in guerra, su ogni porta dei riparti di cura era attaccato un foglietto con del verzi. Autrice dei versi bellissimi, che esaltano il valore dei soldati Italiani che al sacrificano per la Patria, e' la stessa Regina Madre.

TUTTI ATTORNO ALLA BULGARIA

Gli Alleati da un lato, i quali sperano di persuadere in Serbia a cedere la Macedonia, e Teutoni dall' altro, per potere acquistare il diritto di transitare verso la Turchia, tutti fanno delle proposte per ottenere che la Bulgaria assuma un atteggiamento chiaro e deciso. Tedeschi, senza dubbio, annettono grande importanza all' aiuto militare che potrebbe venire dalla Bulgaria, e ancora più ne annettono alla libertà di potere attraversare il territorio bulgaro per correre in aiuto degli alleati turchi.

MILANO, 12 agosto.—L'artiglieria austriaca ha rinnovato un attacco contro il monte Sei Busi, senza alcun risultato.

L'artiglieria italiana è stata attivissima nella Alpi Carinzie, con ottimi risultati. Centinaia di austriaci a lasciare le trincee e favori la fanteria italiana nella conquista di nuove posizioni.

Il tentativo dei nemici contro monte Medatta e quello inteso a stigere del Col Sant non completamente falliti.

Il violento attacco contro le posizioni italiane da Gorizia, vicino Plava, fu preceduto e sostenuto dal fuoco dell'artiglieria, ma i nemici furono respinti con gravi perdite.

Una controffilo lotta si sostenne nella valle Sex Rimbianco.

L'artiglieria italiana ha iniziato, con successo, il bombardamento di alcune fortificazioni nemiche, nella regione del Castelletto.

Il movimento delle truppe Austriache e stato grande negli ultimi giorni, tra Rovereto e Riva; le truppe pare provengono dalle guarnigioni interne.

La Medaglia a un Eroe

Il Corriere della Sera riporta un atto di straordinaria bravura compiuto da un giovane sottotenente del Genio, il quale ha ricevuto la medaglia al Valore d'argento per un suo attacco contro San Michele.

Durante lo svolgersi del combattimento, nell'assalto di un "importante creata, gli ufficiali che dirigevano la estrema destra, tutti caddero. Il detto sottotenente si accorse del pericolo, corse innanzi intrepido, si pose alla testa dei soldati e prese quattro trincee i 'una dopo l'altra, tutte fornite di mine e di ostacoli in reticolati. Egli e gli uomini che lo seguivano, poscia, sorpresero e catturarono 75 austriaci con due mitragliatrici, forzandoli a seguirli nelle trincee conquistate e trattenendoli fino all'arrivo dei rinforzi.

La Quadruplice vede anche lei il pericolo grave a cui andrebbe incontro se la Bulgaria echeggiasse alla Germania, ed approssima alla Turchia grandissimo che ne potrebbe ricevere se la Bulgaria scagliasse le sue fresche truppe contro la Turchia.

CAPITAL IS NOT AWARE OF CALL TO CARDINALS

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The Washington administration appears to be without any knowledge tending to confirm the European report that Cardinal Gibbons and Cardinal O'Connell have called a meeting of neutral Cardinals and Bishops to be held in Switzerland to consider means of bringing about peace.

From a high source in the State Department it was learned that this government had no information on the subject of the supposed meeting, and in the event it was asserted that President Wilson had not been approached or informed with reference to the matter.

That the reaching London mentioned that Cardinal Gibbons had a long conference with President Wilson on the question of acting as arbitrater.

An official of the government close to the President, who would be in a position to know of any conference between Mr. Wilson and Cardinal Gibbons, said that the President had not talked with the Cardinal for a long time.

The London dispatch in full follows:

"The Morning Post gives prominence to a notice circulated in the Italian press by a news agency which generally is well informed on Vatican affairs, to the effect that Cardinals Gibbons and O'Connell, of Baltimore and Boston, respectively, have called a meeting of neutral cardinals and bishops to be held in Switzerland for a few weeks in September to discuss the purpose of discussing some concrete proposal for arranging terms of peace between the present belligerent nations.

"It would appear that these cardinals have invited the Roman Catholic authorities in neutral countries to such a conference, which, though not officially inspired by the Vatican, undoubtedly has received unofficial recognition. For the moment the Pope in his last messages directed to the peoples and rulers at war has said the last word on the question of peace and any further initiative must come from the outside.

"The fact that Cardinal Gibbons had a long conference with President Wilson on the question of acting as an intermediary is supposed to have given rise to the initiative of the Cardinals. It would seem also that this initiative is not unknown to or unsanctioned from German and Austrian sources."

MILAN, Aug. 13.—Austrian artillery has renewed its attempts to shell Monfalcone without result.

The Italian artillery has been exceedingly active and successful along the Corinthian Alps. It shelled the Austrians out of their trenches and enabled the Italian infantry to occupy fresh positions.

The Austrian attack on positions at Monfalcone and the Italian bridgehead place barbed wire defences signally failed. The violent attacks on the Italian positions north of Gorizia, near Plava, was twice repeated, supported by heavy artillery and twice repulsed with heavy losses to the assailants.

Severe fighting also took place in the Valley of Sexten and the sources of the Rimbianchio. The Italian artillery has begun to shell the fortifications in the region of Cadore successfully.

The movement of Austrian troops has been very heavy in the last few days between Rovereto and Riva, coming from the interior garrisons.

RUSSIAN PAPERS CRITICIZE THE WESTERN ALLIES

PETROGRAD, Aug. 13.—Criticism of the western allies is beginning to appear in the Russian press for the first time since the war began.

Whether this proceeding has official sanction is not known, but today the Novoe Vremya, which is often used for the dissemination of government news, prints sharp comment on the fact that large shipments of cotton are reaching Germany through neutrals.

"It is unthinkable," says the Novoe Vremya, "that during this war of life and death, English cruisers should look on quietly at the export of cotton, which is a most important element for the German artillery."

The article concludes with the assertion that the United States herself set a precedent in the Civil War by declaring cotton contraband, intimating that similar action ought to be taken by England.

Queen Margherita's Tribute to Italy's Wounded Heroes

By International News Service.

Rome, Aug. 12.

When the hospital established by the Dowager Queen Margherita, in Rome, was opened recently, it was found that a verse had been placed above the entrance to each ward. There were many compliments from the distinguished guests who attended the ceremonies.

Afterward a lady-in-waiting revealed that the author was the Queen herself. The lines, freely rendered into English, follow:

By QUEEN MARGHERITA.

O H, Fatherland, our Fatherland, forever wilt thou be
Deserving of the holy love thy children bear to thee.
Behold them armed for thy defence, and eager for thy sake
To fare where war's appalling blasts like tempests round them break,
Content with any sacrifice though Death be close at hand,
Because of their devoted love for thee, their Fatherland.

THOUGH perils compass them about, though foes in legions rise,
They see the star of Italy shine clearly in the skies,
And with the courage that it brings, their blood they freely shed,
Each drop a gem that well may grace the crown upon thy head;
And while that star holds out to shine its light will not depart,
To leave in darkness and despair the brave Italian heart.

BENEATH their glorious uniforms their bosoms nobly thrill
With all the lofty sentiments their country can instil.
Forever have their eyes been turned to every far frontier
Where haply an invading host of foemen might appear.
These are the men who make you great, who, loyal, firm and true,
Have dared to do the mighty deeds we dreamed that they would do.

AND when the time of peace has come and wondering children see
The scars the war-worn patriots received—for Italy—
They, too, shall be inspired to deeds upon the field of war
To match the glorious record that their fathers made before.
Let all who see the colors pass with heads uncovered stand
And reverence these protectors of the glorious Fatherland.

O H, Italy—the sweetest name the brave Italian speaks
As he patrols thy shining seas, or watches from thy peaks.
Their country is their life, their all—let every woman's prayer
Arise to God to bless them, and the mighty arms they bear,
Oh, Sun which gilds our lovely land from shore to sea-washed shore
Was ever more inspiring sight than these—our men of war?

BEG 'BABY DOLLY' TO RETURN TO HER HOME

anxiously for you to come home. If you see these ...rds, come home at once or communicate with the police and ask them to bring you to your parents.

Don't be afraid to come home. We are not angry with you. We want to see you come back. Mother and father are crying for you. If you don't want your mother to die heartbroken, come back.

Lovingly,
MAMA AND PAPA.

"Dolly" Guidone—16 use the affectionate diminutive of her middle name, by which she was known at home and among her friends—is unusually winsome in appearance. She has the dark, lustrous beauty of her Latin descent. With the early maturity of girls she is now rising to the height of youthful feminine charms.

The Guidones formerly lived at No. 249 East One Hundred and Sixteenth street, Manhattan. Two years ago they moved to New London, then to Bridgeport, and last May to Hartford.

COUSINS IN BRONX.

It was to visit these cousins that "Dolly" started from Hartford last Monday morning. Her mother left "Dolly" on the 8.36 express from New York in charge of the conductor, who was to put her off at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station in Bronx.

"Dolly" never reached her cousin's home, and immediate inquiry was begun.

The conductor and H. A. Williams, parlor car porter on the train, told the New York police that "Dolly" informed them that she had changed her mind and would ride through to the Grand Central terminal. They say she had to take her long from the car at the terminal to the waiting room. The baggage porter and the girl got out together. In the waiting room by two women whom she seemed to know well.

This first report started the Manhattan police on an inquiry through that city, with particular reference to stage and "movie" centres.

This was because John Guidone, "Dolly's" brother, who is police, the girl was stage struck, that two years ago in Bridgeport, "Dolly" met two stage women who talked theatrical opportunities to her.

So the police put pictures of "Dolly" in many theatrical and "movie" agencies up and down Broadway, hoping to intercept the girl that way.

Paul Guidone, one of the Bronx cousins, came out with a theory that "Dolly" was a victim of a "poison needle," hypodermic needle worker. He said she had no love affair or other compelling motive.

AUSTRIAN PLEA FOR EMBARGO DENIED

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—After being approved by President Wilson, the reply of the United States to Austria-Hungary's protest on the shipment of war munitions to the allies has been given out here. It was announced at the State Department today that the reply would be handed to the Austrian Foreign Office Monday by Ambassador Penfield at Vienna.

The note, it is understood, flatly rejects Austria's claim that the United States is violating neutrality by allowing the exportation of munitions to the allies. Austria in full that the market is open to every one and that if Germany and Austria cannot profit by it, the fault is not with the United States.

Austria's request that the United States establish a place an embargo on munition exports is refused, it is understood. The note explains that if the United States did so at this time it would be discriminating against the allies for the reason that they control the seas. An embargo therefore would injure them and aid Germany and Austria.

BRITISH NOTE TO BE TAKEN UP WITH CABINET, TUESDAY

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Unless the Mexican situation interferes, the proposed note to Great Britain will be considered by President Wilson and the Cabinet on Tuesday. The President, it was said today, has informed Secretary Lansing that he wants to get it out of the way at once. Inasmuch as it is the intention of the government to reject the claims regarded as out of order in Britain's justification of her order in council, the note, it is explained, is more of a legal document than anything else.

The President does not expect his new note will satisfy the Southern cotton men and is preparing to meet insistence for a special session of Congress and an embargo. One of the means that will be taken by him will be to bring the Federal Reserve Board to the assistance of the cotton planters.

How this is to be done is one of the things Secretary McAdoo and officials of the Reserve Board are now laboring with.

CUT RAILROAD FROM KIEV TO WARSAW

BERLIN, [illegible]—A Geneva dispatch says that Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian commander-in-chief, has notified the French General Staff that, to his great regret, he is compelled to evacuate Vilna. The advance of the Germans in Courland and Lithuania has been so rapid that the existing means of defending Vilna would prove futile, the Grand Duke is reported to have explained.

By FREDERICK WERNER.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

BERLIN, Aug 13 (by wireless).—Prince Leopold's Bavarian army has occupied the Polish railway city of Siedlec, it was announced officially today.

This place is on one of the railway lines running from Warsaw to Kiev and the line running south from Cotroienka to Radom and Ivangorod.

In the past forty-eight hours the armies of General von Scoltz and General von Gallwitz took 6,500 prisoners.

The speed made by the Bavarian army of Prince Leopold between the Bug and Vistula Rivers indicates that the Russians have withdrawn practically all their forces from that region, sending time to strengthen their flanks and others rearward to the fortress of Brest-Litovsk.

While Field Marshal von Hindenburg is hammering away at the Russians all the way from Kovno to the Dvina, seven great Austro-German armies are being massed between the Vistula and Bug rivers, apparently for a drive against Brest-Litovsk.

RUSH FRESH TROOPS.

The armies now being concentrated in the triangle of which Warsaw is the apex are those of General von Scholtz, Prince Leopold of Bavaria, General Danki, General von Koveyeh, General von Woyrsch, Arch Duke Joseph Ferdinand and Field Marshal von Mackensen.

Fresh German troops are being sent into the eastern area, and they probably will be used against the Russians as they reach the obstacles there have proved more serious than these in central and southern Poland.

Kovno has been attacked from the air, Russia being dropped both from aeroplanes and a Zeppelin.

Dispatches from the front announce that the bombardment of the forts at Novo-Georgievsk and Kovno continues with the utmost fury both by day and by night.

The fierceness of the rear guard action that has been fought by all the advancing German armies is shown by reports of wounded soldiers coming back from the front. The roads traversed by the Germans were filled with dead and wounded Russians. Every ditch held a ghastly cargo. The fields and woods were full of refugees.

CAPTURE MATERIAL.

A great deal of material discarded by the Russians in their expulsive flight was captured. Among the booty taken at Warsaw were 200 automobiles, a number of trucks and many wagons.

Details of the capture and occupation of Vladimir Volinski on the Luga River, seventy-five miles southwest of Petrograd, were received here today. The Cossacks, before evacuating the town, set it on fire, and the entire town was destroyed in spite of the fact that the captors tried to put out the flames.

MRS. BRITTON IN WAR ON UMPIRES TO HELP HER CLUB

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 12. — Mrs. Helen E. Robinson Britton, vice-president and majority stockholder of the St. Louis Cardinals, styled the "lady magnate," has taken up the war on the National League umpires, and "Bill" Byron was the first to receive a broadside.

It was the first time since Mrs. Britton has been connected with the ball club that she has declared herself, and, disgusted with the umpiring of Byron at a recent game, she asked for a hearing, received one and gave it without stopping at words.

For fifteen minutes Mrs. Britton and the umpire conversed, and during the conversation Mrs. Britton's words could be heard many feet distant and the index finger of her right hand was seen to move within an inch or two of the umpire's face. Byron parted with a bow, doffed his blue hat and hurried into the dressing room for the umpires.

Mrs. Britton said:

"Really, now, I am disgusted with the work of the umpires against my ball club, and I decided to secure a personal explanation. I asked Mr. Byron if Mr. Huggins or Mr. Betzel used bad language to him when the players were put off the ball field. He said no, and then I asked him why he put them out of the game."

"I am not wilfully accusing Mr. Byron or the other umpires of cheating against the Cardinals, but I do know that many of the close decisions have been decided against us. I am not going to tolerate this any longer, and I intend to make an appeal to President Tener.

"It is not once or twice, but it has been regularly all season. Mr. Byron told me that in his opinion he gives fair decisions, but with my own eyes I saw him call a foul when Mr. Zimmerman of Chicago tried to bunt when he had two strikes on him in yesterday's game. Mr. Zimmerman should have been called out on strikes, but Mr. Byron refused to alow this play.

"If we can see them correct on the ball field, I am sure the umpires should see them as they are made.

"Since Mr. Britton became president of the Cardinals I have been interested in my club as a "fan" more than official. I do not like to delve into the business end of the game, other than trying to give St. Louis a winning ball club. But really now I intend to find out if the umpires are wilfully cheating the Cardinals."

Mrs. H. H. Britton, owner of the St. Louis ball team.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE DEAF

If you are losing your hearing—if you are troubled with buzzing and ringing in the ears—if you find that your nostrils are clogged—if you hawk and spit in the morning—if you have given up hopes of finding relief, just go to Riker-Jaynes, or any other drug store, and purchase one ounce of Peroxide Enserol. Mix this with one pint of warm water. Put two drops in the affected ear every night. Put one tablespoonful in a fourth of a glass of warm water and gargle throat and snuff up nose night and morning. Keep this up for a few weeks and test your hearing and you will be pleased to note the improvement. You will also, no doubt, discover that your catarrh has disappeared and head noises gone.

LABOR MEN AND FOSS AT RIVAL MEETINGS

While labor leaders were holding a meeting in a lot off Readville street, Hyde Park, today, former Governor Foss conducted an opposition gathering of employes in the plant of the E. F. Sturtevant Company. Though quite a number of the employes listened to the ex-Governor, many of his employes listened to the labor men.

Reporters were not permitted to attend the meeting addressed by Foss. Ernest R. Freeman, general manager of the plant, said that ex-Governor Foss told the men there would be no work transferred from the Becker-Milling concern, where men are now on strike.

Asked how many men were on strike in the Sturtevant plant, Freeman said a canvass had been made of the employes, and it was learned that there were only fifteen men off, and these men, he said, were either moving their household furniture or at the beaches with their families.

An automobile, with a police sergeant and three patrolmen from the West Roxbury station, patrolled the neighborhood.

The labor leaders were ordered off the lot where they were speaking and took up a position in the street. The police sergeant timed each speaker. There was no trouble.

BODY OFF PLUM ISLAND MAY BE BOSTON MAN

The body of an unknown man was found floating off Plum Island, near New London, Ct., today, and it is believed that he may have been a Boston man and a passenger on the Fall River Line boat to New York.

The body was brought to New London. The man wore a white and lavender shirt bearing the label of Jordan Marsh Company. The man was about sixty years old.

Man in Jail Charged with a New Theft

Charged with breaking and entering the home of Helen H. Vinal, No. 74 Kenwood street, Newton Centre, and stealing silverware valued at hundreds of dollars, Frederick E. Walsh, who is serving a sentence in the Dedham jail for similar offenses, was brought today to the Waltham Court on habeas corpus proceedings, arraigned on the new charge and held in $2,500 for the Grand Jury. He was then taken back to the Dedham jail.

Watertown Boy Says He Tried to Rob a Bank

Guy Finarali, ten years old, of No. 12 Pleasant street, Watertown, today confessed in the juvenile session of the Waltham court to twelve charges of breaking and entering offices and stores.

He said he had planned to break into the Watertown Savings Bank, but has been frustrated by high shutters and iron bars. The boy's arrest was brought about from a description given to the police by John W. Mentzsh, who saw young Finarali break into his store Saturday night.

Says Prisoner Damaged Cell

"The prisoner pulled out pieces of iron in a cell in the new station, and in other ways damaged city property by bending the cell bars," said Sergeant James Smith to Judge Logan in the South Boston Court today, when testifying against John Donahue, who was arraigned on the charge of drunkenness. Donahue was found guilty on the charge of drunkenness and sentence was suspended.

MURDERER OF 'BATH BRIDES' EXECUTED

LONDON, Aug. 12.—George Joseph Smith, convicted of murdering one of his newly married wives, while she was in her bath, today was hanged at Maidstone Prison.

It was afterward reported that Smith had confessed shortly before going to his death. During the procession to the scaffold the condemned man broke down temporarily but quickly recovered possession of himself. He firmly stood erect while the black cap and noose were being fitted and when the trap was sprung death was instantaneous.

Smith was convicted in June of the death of Alice Burnham Smith, his bride of a day. He was accused of murdering three of his brides, but was tried on one of the charges. The trial was one of the most sensational England has ever witnessed and overshadowed at the time even the war news in London newspapers.

Smith was accused of murdering the women for their life insurance. Three of his brides died in an identical manner—in the bath, after he married them.

The case was known throughout the kingdom as "the brides in bath" case and was one of the most sensational trials since that of Dr. Crippen.

SEEK AUTOIST IN LAST 'FLIGHT' MYSTERY

The Massachusetts Highway Commission, co-operating with the State and local police, spread its net today for the mystery car that left two people lying unconscious on the Yarmouth road in Harwich last night and sped on without stopping to learn the fate of the injured.

Inspector Thomas A. Dolan of Boston was assigned to the case by the commission, with instructions to work night and day to locate the mystery car.

An auto driven by Leon Taylor, nineteen, of Hyannis, and containing Mrs. Josephine Doane, forty-two, of Harwich, was struck by a speeding auto on the Yarmouth road near Harwich. Young Taylor's car was overturned. He and Mrs. Doane were picked up unconscious and taken to a nearby farmhouse. Taylor revived several hours later, but Mrs. Doane was unconscious throughout the night. It is feared she suffered internal injuries.

The driver of the mystery car raced away and was soon engulfed in the darkness of the night.

This makes the fourth car of mystery sought by the Highway Commission and the State and local police. The others figured in a triple-string of death-car tragedies. In each case the driver fled.

THREE KILLED.

Hollis Travers, three years old, was killed at Weston July 23.

William H. Conway of No. 287 Water street, a laborer with four young children dependent upon him for support, was killed in Quincy square August 4.

John Griffin of Fall River, the latest victim, died in the Beverly Hospital, Monday, after being struck by a mystery car on Dodbeard Hill in Ipswich.

In the crusade against drunken drivers the Highway Commission today suspended the right of George H. Weiss of Weathersfield, Ct., to operate a car in this State.

Weiss was convicted in the Worcester District Court, August 5, of operating a car while under the influence of liquor. He was fined $50 but appealed from the sentence of the court. His right to operate was suspended pending the outcome of the case.

MARLBORO CHILD KILLED.

The police today were trying to straighten out the auto crash in Marlboro, in which Evelyn Quinn and Gertrude Eagan, both of Jamaica Plain, were injured. The auto in which they were riding dashed against a telegraph pole. Miss Quinn is at the Marlboro Hospital and may have a fractured skull.

The young men in the car gave the names of William Slater and Raymond Murphy. Just what Slater family the young man belongs to is not known.

Marlboro had another serious auto accident when Rene des Rochers, 17, and one-half years old, was run down by an automobile driven by Alonso K. Doyle of No. 1 King street, Worcester. The child received a fracture of the skull and died at the Marlboro Hospital.

LYNN MAN IS FINED $75 FOR AUTO COLLISION

C. C. Connelly was fined $75 by Judge Lummus in the Lynn police court today for driving an automobile without a license and for refusing to stop after a collision with a milk wagon.

Connelly and a woman, who gave her name as May Tagiay, were in the car when it struck a milk wagon being driven down Maple street, Lynn, at 1:30 a. m. today. The car was rapidly disappearing when it was stopped by two patrolmen who heard the crash.

In court today Connelly, who lives at No. 62 Silsbee street, Lynn, said that the woman was driving the car and that the accident resulted when she refused to let him take the wheel.

Nicholson, the milkman, was thrown from his seat over the horses' head, but escaped serious injury.

WILLARD PRAISES OLD-TIME BOXERS FOR GAMENESS

By JESS WILLARD.

(Copyright, 1915, by A. Merritt. All Rights Reserved.)

I HAD many visitors in my training camp at Havana, but the most interesting was a wealthy Englishman who happened to be passing through on his way home from Mexico.

He was seventy years old, he said, and I only hope that I will look as well and strong when I am that age. He was a great fight fan, and his experience went back to 1863, when Jem Mace ruled the English ring as champion.

"I don't care much about the game today," he said. "Fighting has become a business, and the modern champion is nothing more than a penny matcher with boxing gloves on.

"It takes a year for a fight to be arranged nowadays," he said. "You've got to have a fortune to fight for and so many months to train. It wasn't so in the old days. Then they would fight on the drop of a hat, and devil take the money."

For over two hours he sat there and spun yarns about the early champions and their hair-trigger bouts. Compared with modern fights, the old boys were certainly wonders when it came to quick action.

They were a gay lot, those old boys. They were always giving dinners and suppers to each other, or else some lord acted the host. Most of the matches were made at these affairs and most of them ended in a slashing mill for the entertainment of the guests.

Can anyone imagine a dinner attended by Corbett, Jeffries, Fitzsimmons, Willie Ritchie, Mike Gibbons, Johnnie Kilbane, Jimmy Clabby, Jim Coffee, myself, in fact, by every fighter of any class in the country today?

And after the dinner two of the guests getting up and having a regular battle just to show that they were good fellows!

When Dan Donnelly was in England Tom Oliver challenged him, and for the purpose of arranging the match gave a big dinner. Spring was there with Jack Carter, although it was just a week after Carter's defeat by Tom. Donnelly sat next to Cooper, whipped by him in Ireland, and scattered around the table were Jack Scroggins, Ned Turner, Gentleman Jackson, Champion Cribb and Randall the Nonpareil.

To the door of the house came a black boy carrying a note, which he sent up word that he would like to have a mill with any of the fighters present.

"Bring him up," roared Oliver. "Now, boys, who'll it be?"

All of them wanted to have the pleasure, but George Cooper was finally picked on. The noble lord chipped in and raised $125, $100 to go to the winner and $25 to the loser.

Cooper was the smaller of the two, the black boy standing five feet eleven and weighing 183 pounds. The fight went sixty-nine rounds, lasting an hour and five minutes, and was a desperate affair.

Up to the sixty-first round it was Kendrick's fight. Cooper was heavy with food and not a little under the influence of drink. As punishment made him sober he began to get at the black, and in the last nine rounds he showed his true form, winning handily.

At another spread, given at Randall's, a match was proposed between Jack Scroggins and Harry Holt for the middleweight honors.

Holt was agreeable, the table was put back, and a purse of $50 collected. It was a furious battle, but in the twenty-fourth round Holt's head hit against a window seat, and he was no good after that. Scroggins won in the thirty-third and at once rushed over and split his winnings with Harry.

All this sounds mighty rough and tumble, and yet you can read about it without seeing that the fights were all pulled off in good humor and sportsmanship.

The one ugly row was between Tom Cribb and Jack Carter, and this was Carter's fault. On account of his rough ways, Carter was barred from the sparring, but on this particular night he forced his way in.

"So you've left off fighting," he roared at Cribb. "Better say that fighting has left you off, my lad."

His insults kept on, until at last he struck one of the men who was trying to make him leave the room. Without any more words Cribb jumped up and asked that a ring be formed.

When this was done he flew at Carter and gave him as fine a beating as man ever got. Taken all in all, Tom Cribb was some fine fellow.

Ring histories give hundreds of stories about his generosity and kindness to the poor and the weak. His specialty was thrashing bullies and it wasn't safe for any brute to beat a woman or child when Tom Cribb was around.

That's what strength is for, it seems to me. Not only to take care of yourself against attack, but to protect those who can't protect themselves.

In behalf of my profession I want to say this. I do not know a fighter who is a bully. You can't find a single professional today who can be branded as rowdy and quarrelsome. The man who knows that he can take care of himself is the most peaceable fellow on earth.

Tom Spring was another who didn't mind fighting at the drop of a hat. He was at Belcher's one night and ran into big Ben Burn.

"I think I can whip you, Tom," said Ben.

"There's just one way to find out," grinned Spring.

"I've got $100 here in my pocket," Ben answered, "and there's a lot of room on Wimbledon Common."

About 300 people were gathered together, a ring was pitched on the common that very night and Spring finished his man in eighteen minutes.

Jem Ward, while champion, went out on a sparring tour with Sampson, the "Birmingham Youth." Sampson was a likely lad, and as he improved in skill he got the idea that he could whip the champion.

"Look here, Jem," he said one day. "I'd like to challenge you for a regular match. What do you say?"

"You're not good enough, my boy," Jem grinned.

"Suppose we see about that" said Sampson.

The champion was willing and ten fast rounds were fought. Only the seconds, a referee and a few spectators were on hand. Sampson proved a good game boy, but he was no match for the clever Ward.

"You were right, Jem," the Birmingham Youth admitted at the finish. "I don't think I'm ready to challenge you yet a while."

The most remarkable match I ever heard of was the first meeting between Pearce and Gully. Both were Bristol men, and while Pearce was champion he heard that Gully was in prison for debt. He went out to see him with some friends and during the visit the talk turned on boxing.

"I'm going to meet you some day, Hen," said Gully.

"Are you any good?" the champion asked.

"Try me."

A ring was formed, and, while Gully was beaten, he made such a wonderful showing that money was raised to pay his debts. Pearce beat him again in a regular battle, but after his retirement Gully took the title and defended it against all comers.

I reckon we've got to agree with the old English gentleman who visited me in Havana. Times have certainly changed.

(Tomorrow Willard will write about "The Day Before the Battle.")

American Tourists Reach Kansas City

The returning Boston AMERICAN tourists who went to the Panama-Pacific Exposition are entertained by scenic wonders and by the agricultural display of the Kansas grain belt, according to a telegram received today by the AMERICAN from W. T. Dwyer, who is in charge of the party. The telegram reads:

MARTIAL LAW RULES CAPE HAITIEN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Admiral Caperton today declared martial law in Cape Haitien and took full possession of the city with American marines.

He notified the Navy Department that wherever possible he is using civilian officers. There are few of these available, he stated.

Commander Olmstead, of the gunboat Nashville, is in charge of the American forces controlling the town. He has a squad of bluejackets from the Connecticut.

Ambassador Jusserand of France called on Secretary of State Lansing today to inquire concerning conditions in Haiti. The large investments which French bankers have in the Island, and the fact that the rebels attacked the French legation to get the late President, who was assassinated, has caused France to take a keen interest in the situation.

DEMOCRATS AND G. O. P. GATHER TOMORROW

The historic political pot, set to boiling by the prose effusions of Messrs. Foss, McCall, Cushing and Gardner, will whistle again right merrily tomorrow at the stated functions of the Democrats and the G. O. P.

Western county Democrats will assemble at Riverside Park, near Springfield, where a couple of weeks ago McCall and Cushing basked under the same umbrella. This was before Congressman Gardner declared for Cushing, which declaration induced McCall to contribute to the literature of the day and hurl the dart into the Congressman's father-in-law, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge.

Edward P. Barry of Boston, who is expected tomorrow to announce his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant-Governor; Chairman Michael A. O'Leary of the Democratic State Committee and Mayor Curley will be the principal orators at Riverside Park. Other speakers will include Jacob C. Moyes, candidate for State Auditor; Professor Edwin A. Grosvenor, candidate for Secretary of State, and Attorney Harold Williams of Brookline, who is a candidate for Attorney-General.

Governor Walsh will be unable to attend the outing because of an engagement previously made. The Governor will go to Gardner to deliver an address at the unveiling of a monument by the Spanish War Veterans. If time permits he will go to Beverly in the afternoon to address the employes of the United Shoe Machinery Company at their annual outing.

While the Democrats are making merry at their Springfield "get-together," the Worcester County Republican Club will listen to the injunctions of their elder statesmen, at Edgemere, near the city of Worcester.

Senator Lodge, Candidates McCall and Cushing, with the other aspirants for State offices, and local county leaders, will speak. Congressman J. Hampton Moore will come up from Pennsylvania.

Stephen E. French of Orange, who holds his office as secretary of the Progressive State Committee despite the fact that he has endorsed McCall for Governor and Calvin Coolidge of Northampton for Lieutenant-Governor, contributed to the letters of state today by attacking former Governor Foss as a "political hair-dresser" who changes with the colors of the chameleon," and accusing the former Governor of having tried to secure the defeat of Senator Lodge.

Aged Physician Died at Pawtucket

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Aug. 13.—Dr. James L. Wheaton, born in Beekonk, Mass., March 14, 1823, is dead at his home, No. 92 Broadway. He attended the private class of Dr. Henry Childs in Boston and witnessed one of the first operations performed with the use of ether in this country.

BROKEN AXLE CAUSES TIE-UP IN SUBWAY

The subway from Boylston to Park streets was partially tied up for more than three hours early today, inconveniencing thousands of early morning workers.

The cause of the delay was a broken axle on a work car at Boylston street station.

As soon as it was seen the tie-up would be serious the Elevated officials made arrangements for diverting cars to the Pleasant street entrance of the subway.

Many of the early passengers were forced to walk from the Public Garden entrance of the subway to their places of work down town.

Partial service was quickly given, but normal full-time service was not resumed until nearly 9 o'clock.

The place where the car broke down was on the inbound track accommodating cars entering the subway at the Public Garden. When the subway opened for traffic at 5:30 a.m. car, heavily loaded with cinders, gravel and tools was leaving the subway so as to make way for the day's traffic when the axle gave way letting the heavy load down on the track.

At first the workmen thought they could raise the car so that traffic could resume in a few minutes, but the car was so heavy and the workmen so cramped for room that it was found that wrecking crews would have to be sent for.

Meanwhile cars were backed up clear out Boylston street, and the Boylston and Park street stations were jammed with thousands of people, some trying to get into the subway and others trying to leave it.

To accommodate traffic cars entering the subway at the Public Garden were sent through Berkeley and Tremont streets, entering the subway at Pleasant street. Boylston street tunnel cars were unloaded at Boylston street station and then crossed over to the outward track and started on the return route without being sent to Park street.

The disabled work car was not got out of the way until 8:30, and traffic was not resumed on a normal basis until sometime after that.

COLLAPSE OF COAL TRUCK BLOCKS CAR ON COLUMBUS AVE.

Shortly before 9 o'clock today a large coal truck owned by Warren & Bradford, containing five tons of coal, broke down on Columbus avenue near the corner of Berkeley. For forty minutes all traffic on the outward bound track on Columbus avenue and the east-bound track on Berkeley street was tied up. At the same time the tieup occurred in the subway, and all traffic in the subway was diverted to the Pleasant street entrance.

Outward bound Worcester cars were diverted to Huntington avenue by way of the track on Berkeley street which was not affected by the tieup.

ASTORS LEASE N. Y. HOTEL FOR $10,000,000

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—George C. Boldt has signed leases with representatives of Vincent Astor and William Waldorf Astor, Jr., whereby he retains control of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel until April 30, 1928. The total rental for the term is $10,000,000 and is the largest transaction of its kind ever made in this city.

As soon as the leases were signed men started preliminary work on improvements that will cost $1,000,000. These will be made at the expense of the Astor estate.

Pomeroy Writes Poem on Flight of Aeroplane

Jesse H. Pomeroy, the noted life prisoner at Charlestown, is the author of a poem, entitled "The Song of the Flying Machines," which appears in the current issue of the Mentor, the house organ of the prisoners at the State prison.

Although Pomeroy has never seen a flying machine, his description of one in flight is most vivid. The poem follows:

Is varied shapes aloft we skim.
Our wings are extended.
On viewless seas our shield we swim.
Our hearts by fear unbended.
With steady hands we dip our plane.
The motor roll is purring.
And up we down, sidewise again.
Our course is ever veering.
The prize's achieved, our skill,
No doubts of self his mind can fill.
To higher scenes aspiring.

And as we sail in boundless space.
The clouds our highest neighbors.
Their silver lining we near trace.
Where mortal feet ne'er lingers.
And as we view the earth below.
Our bosoms skip in gilding.
The freezing science steels our pride.
In strength of mind enfolding.
At meteors fall from out the sky.
We boldly down to speed fly
And meet the earth uprising.

In sport or gain, in peace or fight
In love or hate, in union.
For some an old denial might
Achieve a like fruition.
Conquerors of the fathered year.
Our earthly bonds unbinding.
The future's promise we have grasped—
Both time and space, defying.
New fores we put within our grips.
Whose realms are open to our sight.
For blonds now are flying!

Billie Burke Calls of Trip on Jinx Day

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Billie Burke, actress, got superstitious. She was to start for Los Angeles today to keep her $40,000 contract for eight weeks in the movies, but when she realized last today was Friday, the thirteenth, she flatly refused to go and would not even pack her trunks.

Her husband, Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., had made arrangements for the trip, but he had to cancel reservations, and arrange to make the trip early next week. He argued vainly that the number thirteen was a lucky one for him, because there are thirteen letters in the title of his new show, "Follies of 1915."

NEW TANGLE FOR CORBINS OVER DIVORCE

News from New York today that Mrs. Lillian Ursula Blakeslee Corbin, who divorced the rich Charles F. Corbin of New Britain, Ct., in 1908, has begun proceedings at Hartford, Ct., to have her decree set aside because no alimony was specified, raised the interesting question in Boston today whether setting aside the old Charles bin divorce would affect the second marriage of Mr. Corbin, who wed Mrs. Mona Drew Babbitt of Dorchester and Mansfield on February 18, 1912.

If the original Corbin divorce is nullified by the Connecticut courts, will that put Mr. Corbin in the position of being a married man when he took his second wife?

The second Mrs. Corbin, a comely widow when she married Charles F. Corbin, was said at the time to have saved her husband $75,000, which had been willed to him as an extra legacy by his father in case he married a second time.

The second wife became known as the "$75,000 bride," but the story that the money and the match had any connection was indignantly denied by the couple.

There is much Boston application to the Corbin case because Mrs. Mona Drew Babbitt, at the time she wed Mr. Corbin, wasm aking her home with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Hatch of No. 44 Centre street, Dorchester. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Prince A. Drew of Mansfield, and the wedding took place in that town.

GOT LEGACY BY MARRIAGE.

The first Mrs. Corbin was Miss Lillian Ursula Blakeslee of New Britain, a society beauty. She married Charles F. Corbin of New Britain in October, 1882. The bridegroom was the son of the late Philip Corbin, who made millions in hardware and founded the American Hardware Corporation.

Two children were born to the couple, Philip Corbin, Jr., and Minnie. The latter married George Kohn of New York in October, 1907.

In June, 1908, Mrs. Corbin secured a divorce at Hartford on the grounds of desertion and intemperance of Corbin. She went to New York and now conducts a boarding house at No. 29 East Thirty-first street.

In November, 1910, Philip Corbin, father of the divorced man, died. He left his divorced son 75,000 in trust, with a stipulation that should he wed again, he should get an additional $75,000. It was reported that the son had to re-wed by December 16, 1911, to get the extra money.

The divorced man was immediately quoted as saying:

"A man who marries a second time didn't deserve to lose his first wife."

Numerous women were greatly interested in the Corbin case. But the alleged time limit passed and Corbin had not taken a second wife.

REPORTED ENGAGEMENT.

But early in 1912, a few weeks after the supposed limit date, it was feverishly reported that Corbin was engaged to a winsome Bay State widow. Then it was said her name was Babbitt. Then it came out that she was Mrs. Mona Drew Babbitt of Dorchester and Mansfield.

She was the young widow of a traveling salesman, who had died two years before. She met Corbin at Martha's Vineyard. She was married to him on February 25, 1912, at her parents' home in Mansfield, with a few relatives and friends present. They went to live at the Corbin mansion in New Britain.

Now Mrs. Lillian Ursula Blakeslee Corbin seeks to have the divorce decree set aside, although her former husband has since married again. Her New York counsel said today that papers in the action have been served on Mr. Corbin, who is said to be in Maine.

TODAY'S THE BIG JAM-BO-REE IN SCITUATE

Today's the day for the Jam-bo-ree. If you were never on one of these, and if you don't even know what the word means, jump aboard a train at the South Station that will take you to Scituate.

You'll soon find out what a Scituate jam-bo-ree is, especially one managed by Mr. Jacques Futrelle. Everybody of any account at all will try to be there.

Actors, authors, musicians, and "just plain folks" will be on hand. The majority of them are to do stunts. Just what these stunts are no one seems to know.

In fact the whole jam-bo-ree is one of those mysterious affairs with everybody on edge awaiting the great surprises which they surely know will be provided by Mrs. Futrelle.

One thing is certain, there will be a bevy of beautiful and accomplished South Shore society girls who will contribute in their novel way.

Miss Virginia Futrelle will lead a little band of six "beauties" who have some "big time act" they are going to spring.

Best of all, it is understood from good authority, that the affair is not so much for money as for a good time. There will be booths of all kinds, the best of music, dancing and hundreds of other interesting attractions.

Mrs. Futrelle invites one and all to take the first train they can today for Scituate and to return on the last train which leaves Scituate at 11 p. m.

Find Hearst Papers Keenest of World's News Organizations

ITHACA, N. Y., Aug. 13.—In an editorial the Cornell Daily Sun, one of the leading college publications in the United States, pays this tribute to the Hearst newspapers:

"Daily the universities are coming into their own. They control the professions; they are gaining in influence in business; and now the Hearst newspapers offer them an opportunity to talk directly to the people—five million of them a day.

"The Hearst newspapers are running a series of editorials signed by college presidents. 'Little Uplift Articles' the originator of the plan calls them. They do not deal with the intricacies of economics, Latin or biology, but with the plain things that every man—certainly every ambitious young man—is interested in.

"The main significance of it all does not lie in anything the educators may say—it has all been said before very likely—but in the new attitude of the newspapers and its influence on the public.

"The keenest newspaper organization in the world sees the value of the college presidents' talks as news. And it is breaking down the intellectual barrier between the man in cap and gown and the man in the street.

"That is the big point, and it is bound to benefit both the man in the street and the universities."

Test New Gilchrist "Water Curtain"

Over 1000 early commuters today witnessed the testing of the new water curtain which was recently installed on the Gilchrist Company store at Washington and Winter streets. Thousands of tons of water drenched the outside of the building, making a huge water blanket which surrounded the entire building.

Officials of the store, fire department heads, and water department men weree present at the demonstration. The test was very successful in everyway. It is the most modern way of coping with serious fires in the congested business districts of large cities.

It is estimated that fifteen gallons of water a minute poured from each of the tiny holes in the water pipes. The system may be operated by a single person and it may be started automatically.

Officials of the fire department were very much pleased with the new addition to this large establishment, claiming that the new system is a large factor in saving property in case of fire.

HARRIET QUIMBY ESTATE IN DISPUTE

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—John A. Sleicher, executor of the estate of Miss Harriet Quimby, the woman aviator killed at Quincy on July 1, 1912, has "unlawfully and without proof of or allowance thereof by the surrogate, paid to himself the aggregate amount of $2,327 upon an alleged loan claimed to have been made by him to the deceased in her lifetime," according to the finding of Referee Louis W. Wendel, Jr., in his report filed in the surrogate's court. The referee further says:

"The deceased, Harriet Quimby, neither borrowed money of Mr. Sleicher, nor did he, the claimant, loan any money to the deceased."

The referee was appointed to determine the merits of the objections to Sleicher's accounting of the estate made by Miss Quimby's mother.

Dealing with Mr. Sleicher's contention that the mother holds certain property of the decedent in her possession and which should be turned over to the executor, the referee finds that it is unnecessary for Mrs. Quimby to turn the property over to the executor, but should be held to have received $400 of her legacy of the entire estate of about $15,000.

BRAVES OPEN BIG SERIES IN PHILLY

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13.—"Don't worry about us! We're all right and nothing can stop us."

So cheerily chirped Manager George Stallings of the Braves when he hit Philadelphia this morning with his crew of Champions. Out West, in the intersectional battling exchange coming to a close Wednesday, the Braves, locked with the Giants, were high for the East.

As a result of bagging eight of their fourteen games, the Boston outfit managed to gain three and one-half lengths on the pace-making Phillies and, where they appeared hopelessly out of the running they were last in three parts, back in the first week in July, standing last and playing tail-end ball, they are now mixed up in the midst of the pennant scrap and loom up as slated to have a large-sized say-so in what's going to be what the rest of the route.

TWO NIGHTS ON ROAD.

Stallings tried hard to make the 8 o'clock train out of St. Louis Wednesday evening, but as Tuesday's storm caused a twin bill to be staged, missed fire and it was not until almost midnight that his band got away. As a result the Braves had two nights aboard their Pullman.

Still, all hands seemed lively at their hotel this morning, and to hear them tell it, it is little short of a sin and a shame what they are going to do with the ambitious Phillies in the series opening this afternoon on the Huntington Avenue Grounds.

Stallings stated that he intends trotting out Dick Rudolph. The renowned little right-hander came in advance of his playmates and has been taking it easy here since Tuesday. When right—and Dick is generally right—he has always been a hard nut for the Phillies to crack.

In days gone by Sherwood Nottingham Magee alone biffed his benders with any degree of accuracy and now that youth is allied with the Braves. So, it is up to Cravath, Luderus and Company to get to Rudolph if the home entry is to cop the maiden matinee.

UP TO MR. ALEXANDER.

Grover Alexander is being advertised to oppose Rudolph. Hence, unless there is an unexpected blow-up in some quarter, a dark twirling duel should be staged. Moran is keeping his plans to himself, but it is understood that the Braves are the club he fears the most and that he will not only work King Grover today, but will shoot him back against the Champions in Monday's getaway bill.

Both clubs will go it today with their fanciest line-ups in the field. There's not a cripple in either camp.

The advance sale of reserved seats for the series in the biggest in the history of the Philadelphia (National League) club. It looks like a sure 10,000 crowd today and a "turnaway," to borrow a show-shop expression, tomorrow.

Sidelights on Sports

WE have with us today, ladies and gentlemen, the dear old Senators from Washington. They are here to give battle to Bill Carrigan's lusty band of Red Sox, who are setting a terrific pace for the other teams in the American League. The Senators have not won a game at Fenway Park this year, and Carrigan sincerely hopes they continue handing games our way.

THE Senators play three games here this trip. The Red Sox hope to make a clean sweep. When the Senators were here last, they played very poor baseball, and were no match for the Boston pennant entry. They recently braced in their playing and handed out a number of severe jolts to the White Sox, while their clan made things mighty interesting for the Tigers.

THE Red Sox cannot afford to take undue liberties with the visitors. Washington has some fine ball players in its lineup, while it is well fortified in the box. Walter Johnson is sure to hurl one of the games, while Joe Boehling, Joe Gallia and Doc Ayres are liable to cause the Carrigans plenty of trouble.

EVERETT SCOTT has regained all of his former "pep" and is playing a brilliant game at short for the Red Sox. There are few major league shortstops who have anything on this youth when he is right. He gave a grand account of himself in the final game of the series with the Browns. Everett made five putouts, while he had four assists to his credit. In four trips to the plate, Scott got a single, which knocked in a run, while he also laid down a perfect suicide sisp.

GEORGE FOSTER, who is leading both major leagues in pitching, should have twenty-five victories to his credit before the pennant campaign ends. Foster has already won sixteen contests, while only four defeats are chalked up against his record. He has been pitching brilliant ball all season. Just now he is Carrigan's Best Bet in the box.

WITH Wood, Shore, Leonard and Ruth also travelling at top speed, the Red Sox are well fortified on the slab mound. Ray Collins seems unable to regain his former skill and Carrigan will probably not take any chances with him, now that he has at least five burlers in fine condition and ready to start every fifth day if called upon to do so.

VEAN GREGG showed a flash of his old-time form against St. Louis when winding up Joe Wood's game, and may soon be given a chance to start a game. Gregg has been of but little use to the Red Sox since he joined the team last year, but if he should get going right President Lannin would receive big dividends on his investment.

WHILE the Red Sox are battling the Senators here, it would not be well to overlook the fact that the Braves open a mighty important series over in Philadelphia today. Stallings' outfit has been travelling at a merry clip of late, and is prepared to make a great drive in the closing days of the National League flag fight.

RED SOX BATTLE SENATORS TODAY

Clark Griffith got in town this morning with his Fourth Placers for combats today, tomorrow and on Monday with our gallant Red Sox.

Ernie Shore or R. Overdue Collins will take first crack at the Senatorial band, while Griffith is morning it may be that Southpaw Joe Boehling will pass the pellet for his entry.

Griffith is more in quest of kale than glory this trip. That's because his outfit stands so far out of the race, even though it can scarcely be crowded out of fourth position, that even were his bunch to pull the big unexpected and while the Red Sox purse is a row it still wouldn't do Washington a whole lot of good.

But Fenway Park business has been enormous all Summer; in fact, Colonel Lannin is outdrawing his three Eastern associates, meaning Colonel Minor, Colonel Shibe and Colonel Ruppert, combined, and this is the town the managers like to bring their club at this stage of the route when funds, not victories, count the most.

Hence, here's where the Dear Old Public, builders of concrete palaces and payers of fabulous salaries to the players, are getting some sure-enough recognition. This forenoon Griffith very generously came out and said that unless something unforeseen happens—and he's not looking for anything that's not on the cards bobbing up—he will use said Boehling today, come back with the Hon. Walter Johnson tomorrow and trot out Joe Gallia, the Tiger Tamer, in Monday's getaway bill.

In the East vs. West battling that came to a close yesterday the Red Sox were high for the entire smear. The club's record was 10 and 4. Detroit and Washington, 9 and 5, each came next. As for the skidding White Sox they were whelped in seven of thirteen starts. Hence, are returning home third instead of first, the position they proudly occupied when they came this way.

Of course, there will be some special festivities out at the yard today. It's Friday the Thirteenth, you know, and Colonel Lannin is supplying a Jinx-Chaser in the member of the Providence Publicity Association. They guarantee that they will bring good luck—even were Griffith to cross us and use Johnson instead of Boehling, who dopes a much easier proposition than the Hon. Walter.

Sister Puts Across Winner by Knockout

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Miss Boag, coach and trainer of Clarry Marshall, is claiming today that she has a champion under her wing, having scored a knockout, dropping Johnny Coter of Newark in the second round.

"Cus your right," she called, and Clarry obeyed instructions and followed up every advantage under her direction.

Marsans Case On Today.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 13.—With the Cincinnati lawyers here, the petition to set aside the injunction restraining Armando Marsans from playing with any other team but the Federals will come up in the Federal District Court this morning.

Philly Poloists Successful.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, Aug. 12.—The Philadelphia Country Club polo team won the Atlantic polo cups, defeating the Aiken Red Birds in the finals, 11 to 7. Philadelphia was allowed a three-goal handicap.

St. Vincent's Want a Game

The St. Vincent's Home Nine Club is without a game for tomorrow and would like to book a contest with some strong semi-professional club. Joseph Donovan, telephone 21665 South Boston.

Baseball Over the Wire.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 13.—The new baseball will be inaugurated at the Federal League ball park here. Other games here today are with Kansas City.

MANCHESTER, Aug. 13.—Pitcher James Mc-Gilvray, released with Manchester, while Pitcher Silva and Outfielder Campbell were signed by Providence.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 13.—The temporary injunction restraining the Pittsburgh Federal League club from either employing or playing Pitcher Sanford Bark was continued by Judge Ambrose in the United States District Court here. A final hearing is held in the case. No date for the hearing is announced.

DECATUR, Ill., Aug. 13.—Pitchers McGee and Kinnaxer and Catcher O'Brien of the defunct Decatur (Three I League) club, have been purchased by the St. Louis Americans.

Friday the 13th; Jinx-Chasers Dug Up by Mr. Lannin

President Lannin of the Red Sox will have the members of the Pilgrim Publicity Association as his guests at this afternoon's game between the Red Sox and Washington Senators. They pride themselves upon being jinx-chasers. So, even if this is Friday the Thirteenth, there's nothing to worry about.

Clark Griffith came to town this morning with a complete family. Where the month of July was a bad one for the Senators, ruining their pennant chances, they have been going along at a pretty nobby gait of late weeks and have their position in the Fat Four cinched. Among their recent conquests were four victories in two days over the slipping White Sox and a shutout triumph over the highfaluting Tigers.

COMPTON JOINS BRAVES; CONNOLLY IS BENCHED

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13.—Pete Compton, the Kansas City slugger, whose American Association swat notch was .342 up to the time that he planned hurdling to the Feds, but instead was lassoed by George Stallings, is here with the Boston party.

Compton is carded to get in today's game with the Phillies. The morning forecast was that he would perform in centre, with Sherwood Magee switched over to left, his original position, and Moran staying in right. Connolly has not been hitting, and a rest should do Joey good.

Stallings is loud in his praise of Art Nehf, the Terre Haute southpaw. So, don't be a bit surprised if he makes his league debut in this series.

Red Sox Showed Them All Up On Western Visit

The East again beat the West in the intersectional series in the American League that came to a close yesterday.

The four Eastern teams won 26 and lost 26, while the Westerners were victors in 26 contests and lost 28. The records follow:

NEWS WRITTEN BY LEADING EXPERTS

BROWN PLANS A BUSY SESSION IN THE RING

MICKEY BROWN, the clever Malden bantamweight, will be back in the ring August 24, when he meets Tommy Shea of New Haven in an eight-round bout at the Atlas A. A. Brown has not been very busy within the hemp ropes of late, but he says that in the future he intends to box once every two weeks if possible.

The Malden bantamweight is managed by Al Morton. The latter says that he is ready to sign his protege for tussles with any of the 114-120 pounds glove boys in the country.

"Brown is able to reduce to 118 pounds," stated Morton today, "but I will not register a strenuous kick if his opponent enters the ring scaling around 120 pounds.

"I believe that Brown is the best bantamweight in New England, and, after his contest with Shea, I will try and sign him for a whirl with Al Shubert of New Bedford."

Morton is also managing Mike Crowley, the national amateur 125-pound champion. Crowley makes his professional debut at the Atlas A. A. August 31, when he meets Charley Sheppard of New York in a six-round match.

RAY BRONSON, who is shaping the pugilistic destinies of Milburn Saylor, the Indianapolis lightweight, who meets Matty Baldwin in a twelve-round bout at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night, has a few pertinent remarks to make relative to Saylor's so-called recent defeat by Johnny Griffiths at Akron, O. He says:

"The situation at the time was a joke. Saylor was fighting his usual good fight and was forcing the battle all the time. He handed Griffiths rather rough, but not in a way that was not perfectly legitimate.

"Fighting is not a pink-tea affair and Saylor fights when he steps into a ring, regardless of who he happens to be opposite. At the time Milburn was disqualified, he had just reached Griffiths with several snappy blows that appeared to take a lot of steam out of him. These came in a clinch, where Saylor does his best work.

"The referee simply waved Milburn aside and awarded Griffiths the contest. Despite a number of protestations made by the "fans," as well as myself, the contest was awarded at the fourth round, thereby stopping what appeared to be developing into a good fight. Griffiths can fight, but Saylor felt certain that he would have scored an impressive victory, as he thinks he will when he faces Baldwin next Tuesday night."

TOMMY REAGAN, the clever East Boston kitter, may soon join the ranks of the professionals. Reagan has made a fine record in the amateur ranks and would probably prove a success if he should start boxing with the money-chasers. Reagan now scales at 122 pounds and possesses enough class to defeat the majority of the professional featherweights. Tommy is a frail youngster, and it is a question whether he would be able to box twelve rounds at top speed just now. But if Reagan were signed for six and eight-round bouts, he would be a mighty hard boy to beat.

Herb Pennock Sent to Help Out Grays

Herb Pennock, the classy young southpaw, whom Manager Carrigan purchased from Connie Mack early in the season, left for Providence this morning, going over to join Dave Shean's Grays. Pennock should prove exactly the proper party to insure Providence its annual pennant winner.

He is a clean-cut youth, with his entire baseball career ahead of him, claim good judges. Pennock may rejoin the Red Sox upon the completion of the International League season. Otherwise, he will doubtless make the training trip to Hot Springs, Ark., with the Carrigans next March.

Arnold Hauser with Feds.

Arnold Hauser, the Cardinals former shortstop, whose health failed him two years ago, and who was recently discharged from a St. Louis sanitarium, turned "outlaw" just as soon as he got out, and made his debut with the Chicago Feds in Newark yesterday. He went hitless, but is reported to have played a snappy game in the field.

Lowell Gets Clarence Parker.

Clarence Parker, the Somerville boy, whom Butch Hickey, manager of the St. Louis Browns, recently landed from Alfright College, and who did a little work against the Red Sox in the series coming to a close yesterday, will finish up the season with Lowell. Lowell has released infielders Bowcock and Esten.

"THE RABBIT'S" COLUMN By Walter J. Maranville SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13.—We are in Pat Moran's town today ready to open what the baseball experts would probably call a crucial series. We play here today, tomorrow and on Monday. The pennant chances of the Braves will probably be determined before we leave here.

We are now three games behind the Phillies. If we should make a cleanup of our series here we would be in a fine position to jump into the lead when we return to Boston, provided that Brooklyn does some losing while we hand Moran's crowd a few jolts.

• • •

It cannot be said that we have an easy job in this man's town. The Phillies have been skidding of late, but they have a grand ball club and will force us to play at top speed all the time. If we are to grab off the big end of the series.

There is one big reason why no ball club can take liberties with the Phillies. Grover Cleveland Alexander is that reason. There are many great hurlers in the baseball game, but when Alexander is the best of the lot.

I have had an opportunity to witness many American League pitchers in action, but National League players who have batted against the stars in the Johnson circuit tell me that King Grover is the class of the field.

• • •

Pat Moran plans to use Alexander in two games of the present series. The big fellow will probably work today while he will be back on the job again Monday. But as we have the winning spirit we are not worrying a great deal about any pitchers in the old league. We believe that we can beat the best of them.

• • •

The boys are all on edge for our series with the Phillies. They are anxious to give the Quakers a couple of severe reverses so that they will lose their fight and cease to be an important factor in the pennant scramble.

We made a much better showing on our recent Western trip than the Phillies. We won eight and lost six games, while the best that the Phillies could do was to grab four wins in thirteen starts.

It cannot very well be said that they played pennant baseball.

• • •

Manager Stallings is confident that we will be "up there" when the season ends in October. Strange to say, the boys does not believe that we will have much trouble in beating out the Phillies, Cubs and Dodgers, the three clubs which have been causing us the most trouble all season.

He says that the Giants will furnish us the most opposition in the final dash down the home stretch. He made this same statement before the National League campaign got very far under way, and still maintains that he had the right "dope" on the situation from the start.

• • •

The Phillies are lacking in high class pitchers. Alexander and Mayer have been doing most of their hurling. These two men cannot be expected to hold up under the terrific strain, and if either of them should "crack" at this stage, the Quaker outfit would take a big drop in the standing.

• • •

The Cubs have played great baseball at times, but they have also been guilty of playing some very poor baseball.

I do not believe that Chicago has the material for a championship team, and it will be fortunate to finish as good as third. It may end up in second position, but if it does we will be out there in the lead. Take this tip from me.

• • •

The Dodgers lack the lasting power. Brooklyn has some good ball players in the lineup, but they will probably tire when the race gets hot late this month.

The Braves, on the other hand, are accustomed to sensational finishes and will be there right in their element.

• • •

All the boys will be glad to get back home next week. We have had a hard road trip, and most of us are tired. A few days at home will put us on edge again, and we will be prepared to put up a rousing finish in the flag fight.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

NOW Master George Foster's record is 16-4. It's a notch high for both major leagues.

• • •

TOO much credit cannot be given "Little Nemo" for his sterling work. In the first place he generally draws the tough assignments. Carl Weilman is the undisputed star of Rickey's hurling corps and in the series winding up yesterday Foster was sent against the lanky southpaw the two times he was trotted out.

• • •

MONDAY Foster applied the brush and he repeated his running kalsomining stunt yesterday. Prior to his first St. Louis show George flayed the Tygers, 4-1. As he wound up that encounter by dealing out five blanks, that raises his total number of successive goose-eggs to twenty-three. Quite a cluster, surely.

DOST know that the Red Sox seldom do much swatting behind the Oklahoma farmer? Honestly, during his entire career as a Lambchop, Foster has only had as lucky a package as six runs piled up behind him twice. So, it has taken stanchy hurling on his part to produce so many winners.

• • •

IT'S a mighty good thing for the Red Sox, as well as their followers, that Wallman is not allied with the Tygers or White Sox. With Leonard and Collins sort of wobbly this Summer, and Plank an "outlaw," C. Woolworth must be credited with being the premier left-hander in the Johnsonian circuit this campaign.

• • •

THE Braves open a series that is bound to prove a sizzler over in Philadelphia today. It looks like Rudolph against Alexander in the opener.

WILEY IN SPECIAL AT BEACH COURSE

George Wiley, the National middle-distance bike champion and holder of the Brassard, will be called upon to defend the latter title in a six-hour motor-paced race at the Revere Cycle Track tomorrow night, when he meets "Bobbie" Walthour, Elmer Collins and Clarence Carman.

The Brassard carries with it a $5-a-day prize until the holder is beaten in another race under the same conditions. Wiley has been drawing down this stipend for over a month, and, naturally, some of the other riders are anxious to get into the swing and take it away from him.

Tomorrow night will mark Wiley's first appearance at the beach oval since he won the championship two weeks ago. The honor of carrying the crown does not seem to have taken any effect on the little Syracuse plugger, for he is just as anxious for work as ever. This fact he strongly emphasized in a statement, when he issued a challenge to both Leon Didier and Victor Linart.

Wiley said that he was ready to meet either of the foreign flyers at a moment's notice, but intimated that he would prefer to tackle them both in the same race. He declared that he did not favor motor-paced match races, as they were too uncertain. As proof of his argument he pointed out the unsatisfactory ending in both Linart-Didier contests, showing the need of a third man in such events.

Wally Schang to Marry.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13.—Wally Schang, of the Athletics, admitted that he is to marry Miss Marie E. Aubrey, of this city. Schang lived at the Aubrey residence, and the romance began when he met the girl of his choice the day he entered Connie Mack's employ.

Willard Was Anxious for Fight to Begin

The day before the big battle was one of great strain on Jess Willard. He never doubted he would win, but he was just impatient to have it over with.

Then, too, he relates in tomorrow's chapter of his autobiography in the AMERICAN a lot of well wishers kept after him with advice as to how to ward off Johnson's dreaded upper cut, and a lot of other pointers as to how he should fight.

But Willard just grinned. He knew he had the best of it, he says, because of the different lives he and Johnson had led.

SOUND BODIES

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE

This is the thirty-second of a series of articles on "Sound Bodies" written exclusively for the Boston AMERICAN by Julian Hawthorne. These articles will be continued in the AMERICAN on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

We will next bow down before the majesty of the ideal.

The Chinese and the Japanese are both very strong people, and the reason may be that their political principles have for so many ages prompted them to submit to the rule of Emperors and Shoguns, and consequently to be constantly in a state of doing obeisance to them. In order to keep in practice, they cultivate like obeisance to one another; and you cannot traverse a street in any of the cities of these amiable Orientals without seeing this exercise performed so often that you no longer marvel at the burdens which they so cheerfully endure.

However, let us get to work.

Stand erect, chest full, stomach in, arms akimbo. Keep that stomach in throughout the movement. It will be in your way if you let it hang down; protuberant abdomens, in these ceremonies, always strike a discordant note.

You may object that this movement is practically the same as one which we had a week or so ago. It does bear an outward resemblance to that, but do not be misled. This one is aimed, so to speak, directly at the small of the back; the backs of the thighs are a secondary consideration. The small of the back—which is anything but small in some cases—is one of the chief victims of modern civilization; most of the so-called comforts of refined life, such as easy-chairs and the railings of verandas, and even mantelpieces in bachelor quarters, seemed designed to accomplish the debilitation of this unhappy spot. In order to sit luxuriously we must, according to modern notions, get a support for our feet nearly or quite on a level with the head, in consequence of which we must slip down in our chairs until the weight of the body rests, not plumb upon the buttocks, but upon some point of the spine, which was never intended to support it. The result is that nine-tenths of us, at least, are weak-backed; and this exercise, which you, in your haste, were about to pass over as a repetition, is calculated especially to counteract this deplorable tendency. It requires less apparent effort than most of our series and yet its good effects are conspicuous.

Here, then, it is. Bow down, man, bow down, and bow, not reluctantly nor deliberately, but with a will and a swing, as if your chest were a hammer, with a blow from which you were about to hit your knees. Feel the pull of the muscles at the base of the spine, and in your return to the vertical, let the stress of the lift come upon the same region. Do not let your thoughts be diverted to any other part of your anatomy. Up and down you go, and at each plunge forward, get the feeling that you are lengthening your whole back out, so as to force your front further down and closer to your legs. It is surely needless to remind you, after so many reminders, that your knees must be always straight.

The sentiment of reverence is said to be lacking in this country; this exercise shows that, contrary to the popular belief, reverence strengthens the back, while irreverence weakens it. If we bowed down oftener, upon proper occasions, we would be able to stand more sturdily erect when the time for that arrived.

It is a great rest from the stale fatigue of sitting for a long time hunched up at the desk over some office chair. Get up and go through this movement a score of times, twice or thrice during business hours, and you will go back to your work with freshened energy. By and by you will be able to keep your back straight all through the business session, and then you will remember with wonder how tired you used to get with only sitting down.

Joseph M. McGrath Hustling Hard for Series Trip

J. M. McGRATH.

Most of the hustling candidates in the American's World's Series Contest are saying, "just four weeks more and I will be a winner of a FREE trip to all of the 1915 World's Series games, wherever played."

And "the wise ones" are hustling all the harder, fearing, though confident of success, that a little neglect in vote-getting might permit some other candidates to get ahead of them.

And that's just the way to feel about it, too—even if you feel reasonably certain of winning because you are hustling every minute. Don't, by being over-confident, give some fellow a chance to step into your place or further up in the list.

Pile up your vote totals, candidates, for the new vote standing which will be published in the Sunday AMERICAN, Sunday, August 22.

A display of candidates' pictures will appear in next Sunday's AMERICAN. Watch for YOURS. If you have not sent one in yet, DO SO TODAY.

Friends of Joseph M. McGrath of No. 252 West Third street, South Boston, are determined that he shall be the successful South Boston representative at the World's Series games. SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 13.—The first events in the two-day National rowing regatta take place this afternoon.

The Unions and the Riversides of Boston are here for the races.

George Haines accompanied the Riverside contingent as coach and Dr Magrath was along to look after the physical condition of the boys. The Riversides are entering Joseph Miller in the intermediate singles, Carey Faulkner in the senior singles and the Faulkner brothers in the senior doubles.

Newton Darling of Harvard is here also for the single events. He should give his best exhibition in the quarter-mile dash, although he will be in very fast company with Hoover of Duluth and Pearse and Releir of New York. Darling is also down to row in the senior singles.

McLoughlin and Behr in the Final Today

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 13.—Maurice E. McLoughlin of San Francisco and Karl Behr of New York will today meet in the final round for the honor of meeting R. Norris Williams in the challenge round for the Achilla trophy.

McLoughlin found Nathaniel W. Niles of Boston to a staunch opponent Niles forced him to a deuce set before he won 6—8, 6—3. Herb had an easier time with Theodore H. Pell of New York, whom he defeated, 6—3, 6—0.

McLoughlin and Ward Dawson, the California pair, won the finals in doubles. They defeated Leonard Beekman and L. E. Mahan, a scratch pair, 6—3, 6—4, 8—6.

"THE GODDESS"

By GOUVERNEUR MORRIS and CHARLES W. GODDARD

By Gouverneur Morris and Charles W. Goddard.

Copyright, 1915, by Star Company.

IN short, the man had recovered from his murderous and suicidal madness. He was sane—a rational creature, who realized what he had done and that the deed was in vain, and that he alone would be destroyed by it.

What madness to suppose that such a man as Barclay would stay by the Mary Nye till she went down! She carried a boat for just such an emergency. But he, Gunsdorf, while the others rowed merrily off, would be left to drown in the dark.

In the first moments of reasoning it did not occur to him that the ship was on fire. Rather he thought that the smoke was some devilish device of the triumvirate, to asphyxiate him.

From the eastern cliffs, which received the onslaught of the open sea, Tommy and Celestia walked to those lower western cliffs whose feet are washed by the less strenuous waters which flow between Gull Island and the mainland, and here, sheltered from the wind, they seated themselves, ostensibly to admire the view, but really to admire each other.

The view consisted of gray water, a vast expanse of it, in commotion, and of a vast expanse of sullen gray sky; and, many miles distant, a small schooner beating slowly up to the island.

"They must be cooking a bonny breakfast," said Tommy, "judging from the smoke."

"Judging by the smoke," said Celestia, "they've got more than one stove."

"By George, you are right!" said Tommy. Then, a moment later, with excitement: "She's on fire. That's why the davits are swung outboard. They are waiting till the last moment to lower a boat. Thank the Lord they've got one! I suppose they want to get into the lee of the island. It must be pretty rough out there for a skiff. They're not making much headway, though. She looks very low in the water. Probably leaks like a sieve, and the fire keeps them from getting to the pumps."

"Can't we do anything to help?"

"Not unless the launch has come back from Bartells. She went over early for newspapers and supplies. Let's go see."

So they raced off to the landing. The launch had not yet returned, and there was neither sight nor sound of her. A cat-boat without even a mast was drawn up on ways, and the only other craft at the landing was a flat-bottomed skiff, so low in the water that she could not have lived in the rough water outside the harbor.

"We can't do any good," said Tommy with a great deal of regret in his voice. Let's hurry back and see the end of it."

They stopped at the house for field glasses, of which there were several pairs in a drawer of the hall table, and hurried back to the western cliffs.

In his explorations of the night before Gunsdorf had noted the sacks of lime raised from the floor of the hold to keep them from any chance water. And it dawned upon him it was his own fault that they had gotten wet and generated enough heat to set the ship on fire.

Captain Nye had kept his courage up, and held grimly to the task of trying to make head against the fire and against the water rising in the hold.

Through what remained of the night, and through all the long anxious morning, he and his two men, aided by Barclay, Semmes and Sturtevant, had fought like heroes against the fire and water.

It was discouraging to have to cart into the burning afterhold so much of the water that they blistered their hands pumping out of it. At one time it looked as if they were going to get the fire under control. In that event they could have kept the vessel afloat indefinitely.

Tommy and Celestia watching the burning vessel with Barclay on board

Captain Nye had suggested bringing Gunsdorf on deck and putting him to work, and the effort had been made. The man was disarmed as he came up, wet to the knees and choking with smoke. But at the sight of Barclay all his hate returned. He would not work; they couldn't make him.

"Why the hell should I," said he, "when I took the trouble to bore the holes that are sinking her, and to start the fire that's burning her?"

All regarded the man with a horror that was akin to awe. Anger succeeded this.

"Is that the truth?" asked Captain Nye.

"Yes."

Captain Nye motioned to his two men. They seized Gunsdorf, and after a short struggle cast him back into his prison and battered down the hatch.

"There's no room for him in the small boat," said Captain Nye; "and there's no more mischief he can do down below."

It was only the fatigue of those who were trying to save her that eventually settled the fate of the Mary Nye. Her captain called the party together.

"Thanks, all hands," he said. "You've done all men could do. We'll need what strength we've got left to get us ashore. So let her burn."

The boy, who had been at the wheel ever since the discovery of the fire, was relieved by Captain Nye. The boy promptly lay down on the deck, and the others followed suit, resting themselves against the time of embarking in the small boat.

At last the moment came when Captain Nye thought best to abandon his ship. His eyes filled with tears.

"Don't grieve, Captain," said Barclay. "I'll pay you her value five times over. You're a good man."

As they were about to step into the boat that bumped alongside but little below the level of the sinking deck, Barclay said curtly, "I can't leave Gunsdorf to die like that."

He himself unfastened the hatch. Gunsdorf had climbed upon the ladder to keep out of water as long as possible. He was more dead than alive. They had to lift him into the boat.

She rode very low in the water and rolled precariously when she had drifted out of the lee of the doomed schooner, and when she hit the rougher water she rolled quietly over and floated bottom up.

The shock of the cold water revived Gunsdorf so that he did not at once drown. He succeeded in getting hold of the boat and keeping his head out of water.

Over the inverted bows Barclay crawled out of the water and lay sprawling on the arched, slippery bottom of the boat. From this advantageous position he looked about eagerly to see whom he could help. Of the whole party only Barclay and the boy could swim. Sturtevant and Semmes, if they ever came to the surface, were never seen again by mortal eyes. The boy swam to the boat and climbed up on it with Barclay's help.

Another Delightful Home Recipe, Which Tells How to Prepare the Clam and the Lobster

By DOROTHY DIX

AMONG the crustaceans that have an honored place about our tables none is so commonly found as the Clam and the Lobster. In fact, no banquet or public dinner would be complete without them, and as they come extremely high they are responsible in a large measure for the extravagant coat of such functions.

The Clam is a small, reticent, pallid-complexioned creature, distinguished by its cold feet, which is found all along the eastern seaboard of the United States and in England, where the very finest varieties extant are produced. A very superior quality of Clam, however, is indigenous to Boston, but none is produced west of the Alleghenies or south of Mason and Dixon's line.

This makes the Clam somewhat of a gastronomic rarity in America, and perhaps explains why it is considered a delicacy, although as it is in reality somewhat flavorless, and the taste for it has to be generally acquired by fasting.

There are two varieties of Clams, Little Neck Clams which wear a fourteen and a half collar, and have bulging brows, and long hair, and carry a heavy line of conversation about the supermen, and literature, and music, and art. This variety is extremely cold and clammy, and is generally found attached to some uplift movement, from which, however, it is easily removed.

THE OTHER SPECIES

The other species of Clam is just a large, rotund, unintelligent body, with no volition or initiative of its own. This is undoubtedly the native stock, the Clam that was born Clam in contradistinction to the Clams which have cultivated clamminess.

Some housekeepers, who are particular about the kind of Clams they serve at their table, go out and pick out their own Clams. But the majority of women are sadly lacking in energy and thrift, and so they order in the Clams over the telephone, or obtain them from the Social Register, where they may be had for the asking. In this way the Clams for most week-end parties are obtained.

Clams may be prepared in a variety of toothsome ways. Occasionally one may be found in the soup. This is known as clam bouillon, and is a dish that hostesses delight to serve at semi-literary and musical functions, where some literary or artistic lion is invited to try the strength of his or her voice against the combined conversation of seventy-five or a hundred ladies.

Stewed Clams are a very common sight at our best tables. Little Neck Clams are the best variety to use for this dish. To make stewed Clams begin by preparing a sort of sandwich by piercing the Clam between the fat downers where conversational range is limited by distance, dress and domesticity. Pour over this mixture an assortment of cocktails, sherry and cherpagne, with a dash of Benedictine. Serve as soon as it is mellow.

THE FAVORITE WAY

The favorite way of serving Clams is, however, to use them as a relish at the beginning of the meal. This makes anything that comes afterward seem delicious by contrast. As the Clams have no flavor of their own, the only way in which they can be made palatable is by drowning them with sauce piquant made of large wads of the long green, combined with equal parts of automobiles, theatre tickets and smart restaurants. Seasoned with this way Clams become the favorite dish of many women, but Clams do not appeal to the feminine taste in their plain state.

Although, as has been said, the finest Clams are found in the East, by obeying some law of nature, as soon as they have arrived at the spending age they emigrate to New York, where they support themselves in the liquids along the Great White Way.

This makes the Lobster fishing off of the Broadway banks the best in the world, and large numbers are annually landed by young women who are especially expert in angling for this delicious crustacean.

How best to catch a Lobster is a matter concerning which there is much dispute, but the opinion of the most successful fisherwomen is that the best bait to use is a fly made of good looks, a slim figure, and a pair of nimble heels. They aver that with this bait you can hook a Lobster every time.

Lobster is served in a variety of ways, one of the favorites being Stuffed Lobster. To prepare this dish, fill your Lobster with hard luck stories, and pathetic tales of cruel employers, and mercenary creditors, and romances of never having loved before.

Throw in the salt of tears unless it makes your nose red to weep, and flavor with a little paprica of jealousy. This makes a rich and satisfying dish upon which you can support life indefinitely.

Broiled live Lobster with deviled sauce is excellent. Having caught your Lobster, place it on a griddle made of whims and caprices, light the fire of jealousy under it, and, when it is done, pour over it a red hot sauce made of the artistic temperament.

When a Lobster is sixty or more years old the most satisfactory way to use it is to can it and keep it on the shelf for emergencies. There is, however, fortunately no danger of the Lobster crop being exhausted, as a new one is born every minute.

The Better Way

"John, John," whispered timid Mrs. Johnes urgently, about 2 a. m. recently, "get up—get up! There's a man in this house!"

"Grup-p-ph!" replied John sleepily.

"Oh, John, do wake up! I can hear someone moving about downstairs," she went on, prodding the sleeper fiercely in the back with her elbow. "If you don't hurry, he'll take all our silver!"

"Better that he should take all our silver than that I should go downstairs and take all his lead, my dear," replied John firmly, as he removed his back out of the danger zone and settled down to his slumbers again.

Neatly Put

Dr. Newwedde had soon found out that his wife did not approve of bridge, or clubs, or men friends, and of a lot of other things.

One evening he received a note from three fellow-physicians inviting him to come around and have a game of cards.

"My dear," he said, speaking seriously, "I—er—I have just been called out rather urgently. Evidently it is rather a bad case, as there are three other doctors there already."

How to Fight Tuberculosis

Dr. J. W. Carhart, of San Antonio, Texas, says: "Since lime salts constitute three-fourths of all the mineral substances of the human body, they must be supplied in the foods or supplements in mineral preparations, or natural starvation ensues, with tuberculosis unchecked. The spread of tuberculosis and other preventable diseases is due largely to debilitated tissue lacking conditions of multitudes throughout the civilized world.

Since lime is one of the ingredients of Eckman's Alterative, much of its success doubtless is due to its combination in such a way as to render it easily assimilable.

Eckman's Alterative has effected remarkable results in consumption which, in many instances, constantly has yielded to it and more or less rapidly, as the disease has progressed, has resisted all other treatment. Being free from opiates and leading drugs it

Which Hour Is Your Happiest?

An Interesting Question, Which Opens Up a Wide Field of Discussion

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHAT means the joy o' life to you? What gives to your day the greatest measure of happiness? It is worth your while to stop and consider this question very seriously, for your enjoyments show a very definite phase of your character.

A little thought will convince you of the truth of this. Consider the history of nations—at periods when civilization did not brought kindness and humane instincts to be factors in feeling, enjoyment came from the sufferings of others. A barbarous populace got its gayety from gladiatorial combats in which brother of conquered peoples might be compelled to slay brother.

It found pleasure in watching human mauled and torn to death by wild beasts in the arena.

Today the barbarous instincts of human nature are dying—but not dead. What makes you laugh when you see a harmless old man slip on a banana peel and fall to experience ignominy and perhaps pain? A sense of humor ought not to be so tremendously appealed to by this common enough spectacle of a fellow mortal losing his footing. It isn't sense of humor, but the excitement of the unexpected mingled with the old barbarous instinct to get fun out of other people's pain.

Examine yourself rather carefully to see what gives you happiness. The knowledge will give you light on the profitable study of your own nature.

Do you get your greatest joy out of the excitement of a social "good time"? Then your are too much of of a butterfly and must take yourself to task lest you slip into the ruts of idlers.

Is your happiest time that spent in reading, in the peace of home and family, in the quiet of nature, in any environment where you have only to bask in the pleasant surroundings that give you peace? Well enough so far as it goes—you are probably a kindly, studious person—but you lack initiative.

The healthiest form of enjoyment comes from work. Honestly it does! There is a glorious joy in the feeling that comes over you when you stop for a moment and look at what you have accomplished and know it is good.

"I did this. I added this to the sum of human achievement." Not feeling that comes to you can be more fraught with real joy than the peaceful satisfaction of looking on your work and knowing it to be good.

If effort and accomplishment as its crown mean the greatest possible happiness to you, you are one of those energetic, ambitious determined souls who will surely forge ahead in the world.

If serving others and bringing happiness into other lives is your ideal of happiness you are one of those noble souls born to make the world better because you have been in it.

If anything constructive—anything that adds to the sum of human knowledge or happiness of others is your ideal you are not yet satisfied citizen of the world. Don't let yourself be a barbarian. Make your ideal of happiness a fine one.

Do You Know That—

Color blindness is more than twice as common in men as in women.

February, 1868, had no full moon. This was the first time such a phenomenon had occurred since the creation of the world, and it will not occur again, according to the computation of astronomers, for 2,500,000 years.

In October, 1890, an American citizen, Mr. Joseph Johnsen, of New York, was arrested in Berlin for wickedly, feloniously and treasonably avowing a willingness to sneeze at the German Emperor.

The church porch in former days was the place selected for the payment of dowries, legacies, etc. Marriages were solemnized in porches, fairs held there, beggars plied their calling, and great persons were buried in the porch.

Dutchmen are the heaviest smokers in the world.

Centenarians Among Animals

Undoubtedly the Carp Is the Longest Lived, Though the Elephant Reaches the Hundred Mark

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

WHAT is the longest lived animal? Not man, the most intelligent. If length of life were governed by the relative intelligence of the living creatures, man ought to live several thousand years, since a mere goose has been known to live eighty. But it might be said that the real intelligence is on the other side, and that man lives long because it has great commonsense.

In nothing do the inequalities of nature show more conspicuously than in the length of life. It varies from a few hours for some insects to one or two centuries for some vertebrates. It does not, by any means, appear to be generally proportioned to what we should regard as the usefulness of the species.

But this is simply to judge according to human standards of utility. There may be reasons inscrutable to us, but very plain to nature, why the crocodile's span of life should be a hundred years and ours only seventy. Perhaps one reason why our lives are no longer and why we do not continue, like the crocodile, to grow as long as we continue to live, is because we are constantly worrying about the approach, and the inevitability, of death, whereas the crocodile never gives a thought to anything but eating and sleeping.

As far as anything resembling reliable records can show, the longest-lived animal is a fish—the pike or the carp. Both of these are said to have lived, to human knowledge as much as 150 years. There is a legend that whales live 500 years, but this is probably based only on their immense size. The whale is by far the largest animal now living on the earth, and it might be conceived that its life's length is proportioned to its physical magnitude.

At any rate, even moderate estimates made by naturalists place the limit of the whale's life as high as a hundred years. This is also set down as the life span of the largest land animals, the elephant.

The raven has the reputation of vast longevity. Some say it can live 200 years, and there is a general agreement that it often attains 100. However, it is extremely difficult to obtain genuine, unbroken records of longevity in the case of any animal which outlives the generation of men that saw its birth. Great uncertainty exists even concerning the best authenticated cases of human longevity. For instance, doubt has been thrown upon the correctness of the long-accepted record of the life of Thomas Parr, who was honored with burial in Westminster Abbey because of his extraordinary genius in the prolongation of life. He is accredited with 152 years, having been born in 1483 and died in 1635.

Among long-lived birds the eagle, the crow, the parrot, and the swan are credited with attaining a century. Sparrows sometimes live forty years, a great age for so small a creature. Herons are credited with sixty years, crows with sixty-five, peacocks, pigeons, cranes with twenty years and over; canaries, linnets, nightingales, goldfinches, larks, pheasants, partridges with from fifteen to twenty, robins and thrushes with twelve, and the domestic hen with ten, at which age she is quite safe from the pot.

Salamanders are long-lived, according to a recent book which shows that one was kept for fifty-two years. Sea anemones are credited with as much as fifty-five years of life, crayfish with twenty, lampreys with sixty.

Horses sometimes attain as much as forty years. I knew one myself, a cream-colored mare, who at thirty-five was still a strong and willing worker, though irritable in temper. She died in harness. Her owner always said she had more brains than her companions, and showed them how to work. There is an English record of a horse called "Old Billy," who died at the age of sixty-one, and it is said that horses have been known to live to seventy. A dog is very old at twenty. Proof may sometimes be seen in the gutters that cats are mortal, notwithstanding the legend about their "nine lives."

Among men, at least, longevity is an inheritable quality, since it is well known that long life runs in families, although the records are affected by intermarriage.

In the Same Boat

The mistress, not wishing to offend her cook, who had been with her but two weeks, announced in a low, well modulated voice:

"I am sorry, Ellen, but the master found fault with your cooking today."

"Lor', I don't take no notice of 'im, mum; it's his blessed nature to find fault. Ain't he always findin' fault with you?"

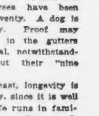
The Art of Conversation

"I don't think Mr. Rindley is much of a conversationalist," observed Miss Cawker. "Well, he called on me last evening," said Miss Flinch, as she carelessly twirled a new ring on the third finger of her left hand, "and I found his conversation quite engaging."

Cadum Ointment gives immediate relief in all forms of skin troubles such as pimples, blotches, eczema, tetter, itch, acne, herpes, scaly skin, rash, sores, chafings, hives, etc.

Since its introduction, it has cured many cases of eczema and other unsightly, irritating and distressing skin diseases after other remedies had failed. Cadum stops the terrible itching of eczema at once, and begins healing the first time it is applied. Many of the results obtained by the use of Cadum may be truly called wonderful. 50c. and 25c. a box. At all druggists.

An Easy Way to Get Rid of Ugly Pimples



Bathe your face for several minutes with resinol soap and hot water, then apply a little resinol ointment very gently. Leave on ten minutes, and wash off with resinol soap and more hot water, finishing with a dash of cold water to close the pores. Do this once or twice a day, and you will be astonished to find how quickly the healing resinol medication soothes and cleanses the pores, removes pimples and blackheads, and leaves the complexion clear and velvety.

Resinol ointment and resinol soap stop itching instantly and speedily heal skin humors, sores, burns, wounds and chafing. Sold by all druggists. Sample free, Dept. 24-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.—Advertisement.

STREET BREAK ENDANGERS 75 PERSONS

The rear right wheel of a heavily laden auto truck of the United Drug Company, which was passing out of Dewey square along Atlantic avenue, toward the Hotel Essex this afternoon, broke through the roadway planking over the subway excavation for the Dorchester tunnel. The rim of the wheel rested on the top of a masonry pillar, but the shock loosened adjoining planking on which seventy-five people, waiting for the truck to pass, were standing.

Patrolman Buckley, the crossing officer, hearing the cracking of the planks, thrust some of the people back and warned the rest not to, lest there be a general collapse of the planking.

An Elevated wrecking crew was called to pry up the truck, which was held by the front wheel. The driver of the truck was Thomas J. Murtagh of No. 100 Hallock street, Roxbury. Neither truck nor load was damaged, so far as preliminary observation showed.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

The annual outing and picnic of the Connell-McKone Company, the J. W. Connell Company and the Boston Rubber Company will be held on Fairmont Park, Wellesley, tomorrow afternoon. Major Andrew Peabody Peabell of Quincy, who has just returned from a victorious tour of the Pacific Coast, has promised to be present and referee all arguments that may arise during the holding of the annual athletics and other events. Once a year Messrs. Connell and McKone take delight in entertaining the men who work with them, and while previous outings have always been enjoyable, the one scheduled for tomorrow afternoon is expected to excel all that have gone before.

Frank W. Libby, a former Boston boy, now general manager of the Meinelin Tire Company of Milltown, New Jersey, at present Minneapolis distributor of the Overland car, is spending a few days in this city visiting his parents in Somerville. Mr. Libby called on the sporting editor of this paper, George N. Jordan or the Studebaker, and J. W. Connell of the Connell-McKone Company.

J. S. Donovan, Boston distributor of Studebaker cars, is on a business trip through southern New England.

J. M. Linscott, of the Linscott Motor Company, who has the sale of the Pacific Reo factory at Lansing, is doing a land office business. He says that he never in the history of the business has things looked so promising as at present.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were weaker in the last hour. They had ranged higher earlier in the afternoon. There was profit taking and talk of cancellation of wheat purchases and war supply orders by European governments which caused nervousness.

American New York declines were Allis-Chalmers ¼, Bethlehem common 5, Crucible ¾, General Motors 1, Beet Sugar ¾, Car and Foundry ¼, Erie 1¼, Reading 2¾, Lehigh Valley 4, Canadian Pacific 1¾, Union Pacific ¾, Southern Pacific ¾, Utah ¾, Anaconda ¾ and American Smelting ¾. Gains included U. S. Steel ¼, American Locomotive 2¼, Goodrich 2, Studebaker 2½, Maxwell ¾, Willys-Overland 12, Westinghouse ¾, Chino ¾, Chesapeake & Ohio ¾, Atchison ¾ and American Can ¾.

In Boston Butte & Superior was off 1¾, American Zinc 1½, Quincy ¾, Ice Securities 1, Granby ¾, Copper Range ¾, Boston & Maine New Haven ¾ and Mohawk 1. Among advances were A laska Gold ¾, American Woolen preferred ¾, Calumet & Arizona ¾, Pond Creek ¾ and Island Creek 1¼.

WILLYS-OVERLAND'S BIG GAIN.

Willys-Overland was the strongest war order issue. During the morning it sold at 196, up 19. Bethlehem Steel preferred was weak, declining 2½. Issues to attain new highs included Willys-Overland, Studebaker, Goodrich, Car and Foundry and National Enameling. The slump in coal road shares was due to the Interstate Commerce Commission decision reducing anthracite freight rates. Record revenues may be curtailed about $8,000,000 a year. The New York market was irregular at the start, weakened and rallied. Bulls averaged more at the morning. At the lowest price level there was considerable accumulative buying. U. S. Steel recovered after declining more than a point. Trading was about of the same volume as yesterday. Weakness of sterling exchange caused much comment. Sterling is nominally at $4.71½ and cable $4.72, the lowest quotations ever known. More shipments of gold to Canada on British account are looked for. Amounts so far received have not affected exchange rates. In banking circles there is belief that some important international financial move in England is pending. Known movements of money indicate a gain of about $16,000,000 in cash by New York banks for the week.

ZINC RISING IN BOSTON.

The Boston market opened dull and so remained. Zincs were prominent and weak. Inland Copper and Tread were strong. There was not much trading in coppers, but they ruled lower. It is believed that when metal buying is resumed it will be on a basis of about 17 cents a pound for electrolytic. Consumers will wait as long as possible evidently before placing orders. Prices in London spot copper differences were £5 and electrolytic was unchanged. Lead was off 2. Spot spelter was off 12. There was no change of consequence in the metal market in this country.

BOSTON ROOKIES DRILL IN DOWNPOUR AT PLATTSBURG

At top, Boston recruits are seen cleaning their rifles. At bottom is Robert Bacon, former Ambassador to France, Fellow of Harvard, member of the Somerset Club, Boston.

©UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N.Y.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 12.—The 287 business men, college football and baseball stars, professional men and others from Boston's Back Bay and Brookline, who are among the 1,600 and more of citizen soldiers at the Federal camp here, received a baptism of rain and mud today as another variation of soldier's life.

When the eager soldiery awoke to reveille at 5:45 a. m. rain was falling. The ominous dressed and tunneled out through the wet for breakfast of corncake, hash, rolls and coffee.

Then they drilled in the downpour until they were as wet and muddy as possible. Even Boston's well known muddy streets could not have made them show so much dirt.

For an hour or so after drill, the Bostonians, who are so quick and span at home, were pleasantly occupied scraping and brushing off the mud from uniforms and shoes. By noontime, however, the sun came out and soldiering was more agreeable.

HAUGHTON GETS A "PICK."

The progress already made by these "citizen soldiers" has won the commendation of the regular army officers serving here as their instructors. To the praise of these officers has been added the personal commendation of Major-General Leonard Wood, commander of the Department of the East, who has established his headquarters here for the month.

The men themselves are taking to their soldiering seriously. There is no shirking any duty, or asking any favors. Millionaires are making up their own beds as cheerfully as hired hands. Men who rank high in public life are cheerfully running errands, bringing water and performing hundreds of other like jobs which fall to the lot of the army "private."

The first military duty performed by Coach Percy D. Haughton of the Harvard football team was to walk half a mile across the encampment for a pick and shovel. Having dutifully secured the same he returned to his company street and helped his comrades erect a "storage" tent.

TO HAVE MIMIC BATTLE.

Assistant District Attorney Thomas D. Lavelle, who is private 655 in Company H, is earning his shoulder straps doing extra duty in his company street.

Some of the best known Bostonians in the camp, Benjamin Joy and Fred R. Bolton are respectively serving as temporary officers in Companies E and F.

Several of the Boston contingent, including "Eddie" Bowditch, the old Harvard football player, Roger Homans, J. J. Storrow, Jr., and J. W. Farley have enrolled in the cavalry squad. Others have been assigned to the machine gun company, in which are many former Harvard and Yale athletic stars.

It was announced today by Captain Dorey, in charge of the camp, that if conditions warrant, the first sham battle between the "Rookies" and regulars will be fought the latter part of next week. For those "hostilities" the Thirteenth Regular Infantry will be ordered here from Fort Ethan Allen.

BOSTON MEN PROMOTED.

Among the promotions are Dr. G. H. Wright of the Harvard faculty and H. Fuller of the Second National Bank of Boston, who have both been made corporals. The former is in C Company and the latter in H.

Among those who went over today to take up advanced engineering, map reading and other field positions are Thomas D. Lavalle, C. S. Forbes, A. B. Tenney, Ralph Gray, Dr. A. Warren, John Saltonstall and Benjamin Joy.

Some Boston men among the machine gun troops are A. W. Farley, G. H. Fearing, jr., Percy Haughton, Norman Cabot, John C. Phillips, H. H. Gardner, jr., and Harrie Livermore.

A. B. Tenney, president of suburban Boston gas and electric light corporations, a private in one of the companies, says that if camps like this one are held next year he will spend a half dozen of the men in his employ to take the training at the company's expense.

Edward H. Savary, a Boston lawyer, who is 40 along in years, fifties, is an enthusiastic cavalry recruit. Savary is the first into the lake in the morning.

M. H. GULESIAN KEEPS BUSY.

M. H. Gulesian, the president of the Huntington Avenue Improvement Association, intends to take up a special course in camp sanitation. Although he is near the half-century mark, he is one of the most enthusiastic of the members of Company C. When he is not drilling or taking instruction, and those times are very few, his chief concern is for the wellbeing of J. Winthrop Pickering, the sixty-seven-year-old Charlestown lawyer.

The machine gun company was busy all day pitching tents at Plattsburg barracks in the woods about a quarter of a mile from the camp. Two Boston men, C. S. Forbes and Reginald C. Foster, who came up from New York with the armored train, left that organization to join regular companies. The machine gun company will get little of the regular infantry drill, and the two men left it for that reason. The rest of the Boston men will stay with the company.

Dr. Wright, the oral surgeon, joined the hospital corps, and expects to do a good trade in typhoid inoculation, which commenced today.

HORSE JOLTS LAWYER.

Lawyer Savary of Boston went out with the three big troops of cavalry. He had the misfortune to draw the biggest rascal of a horse in the whole bunch. Mr. Savary had ridden before, but it was years ago.

"I stuck on," he says, "but there was a moment when I lost my stirrups. The rogue of a horse knew it on the instant, and began to act up. I felt myself as I lunged my pulse on his atlas vertebra.

"My stockings were coming off, and one of the regular army cavalrymen who went with us to help suggested that I dismount and rearrange my apparel."

Lieutenant Miner of the regular army counted up the field pieces possessed by Generals Longstreet and Hill at Gettysburg, and stated that all the light field pieces the United States has today count up only twelve more than their total, though more than half a century has elapsed.

At present the men were paraded with a band on the meadow below the camp. They came down with a swing and a form that made General Wood say, "Look at that." You would hardly believe they had been only two days in camp."

Paragon Park Sues on Slander Charge

Attorneys representing Paragon Park have brought suit against H. R. Peers for a petition for $25,000 for alleged slander in the sum of $25,000.

It is alleged he circulated a report that Paragon Park had failed and closed up on account of the rise in boiler rents. George A. Dodge, general manager of Paragon Park, says:

"Yes, word did come to me that such a report was in circulation in Boston, and as soon as I was able to trace this slander to some definite source I placed the matter in the hands of the company's attorneys. The absurdity of any such report is evident. Thousands of people have been here during the last few days, and it has been open and doing business since May 29, without interruption—something easily ascertainable by any one who feels called upon to make it a subject of conversation. Here is the greatest Summer amusement institution on the Atlantic coast, known all over the United States, representing an investment of half a million dollars, and operating most successfully for years."

Save Allston Woman from Death by Gas

With a gas tube in her mouth, the end of which was attached to an open burner, Mrs. Caroline Burnett, fifty, was found unconscious in her room at No. 47 Pratt street, Allston, today, by Miss Katherine Shaw, who was attracted by the odor of gas. She was taken to the City Hospital Mrs. Burnett recovered consciousness. She refused to explain her act.

ASKS BOYLSTON SUBWAY CARS BE MARKED

Editor AMERICAN:

I wish the AMERICAN would voice the sentiments of thousands of people who use the Park street and Boylston street subways to secure from the Elevated some kind of marking on cars when not in the new Boylston street subway.

Did you ever fight your way through the crowd, finally getting up to the car and half way inside just to ask the conductor if this is a subway car? If it is not, then you have the fun of getting out through the crowd and wait and watch and fight all over again up to another conductor.

Now it would be simple to put some sort of a plain marker on the top of subway cars, and red for—say a round, red tin marker which would be lighted at night, bearing simply the word "Subway." People would see it far off and know it was a subway car. If you don't like the route board and see if it was the car they wanted. Please publish this letter and ask other readers to join me in this protest. The Elevated will see that this is needed. Let us have a reply here and the AMERICAN and the Elevated will have both done a public service.

H. A. C. WILMOT.

Low Neck Collars for Men? Shirtwaists and Belts? Duck or Silk Suits?

This City Is Certainly the World's Great, Cool Summer Resort. How Shall Men Dress to Prove That They Appreciate the Fact?

A MAN dresses in Summer much more warmly than a woman dresses in Winter. Men have colds in their heads; women apparently do not.

Men get pneumonia more often than women. Men get consumption very much more often than women.

What's the explanation?

One of our readers, enthusiastic about the big city that shelters him, says that men should dress differently, act in a warm climate as though they appreciated a warm climate, and advertise in their costume the fact that the city is the world's great Summer resort.

Here is the interesting letter:

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Jump on our mates who commute into the city daily, dressed as if for a funeral. What's the matter with white shoes and Summer negligee in town?

This city is the greatest Summer resort extant. There are at this moment a great many thousands of outsiders here enjoying it.

Our grass is everywhere the greenest. Our trees have the most wonderful foliage.

There were never so many million flowers. Our restaurants have every known meat, fruit and berry, fresh vegetables and fish galore at low prices.

We have had few, if any, uncomfortable nights.

We have the coolest breezes daily, and are not especially cursed with flies like some resorts where people are driven out of dining rooms by insect pests, while boards of health take their vacations and forget the swatters.

For our men to think they must wear sombre clothes in business offices is a crime against nature and a reflection on the city.

As a matter of fact, most of us are staying in the city from preference, enjoying this city's wonders of climate, health, amusements and cleanliness, drives and walks.

Come, let the world know that our city is supreme!

Millions of Americans have never seen it, as I know personally from deduction, since more than 100 of my own relatives, all well to do, have never been here.

W. H. B.

All good suggestions, at first glance. Unquestionably men dress stupidly.

What could be sadder than the man in a dark blue suit that attracts the heat, with a stiff, tight, starched collar around his neck, a tight belt around his waist, or harassing suspenders over his shoulders, an apoplectic face, feet squeezed into patent leather shoes? Beside your apoplectic, foolish man consider the perfectly cool woman.

She has short skirts, and the air blows through them. Her arms are perfectly bare, or covered with something like mosquito netting, reaching about half-way down.

Her neck is open, front and back, usually. Plenty of air circulation there.

Certain drawbacks, such as high heels, invisible corsets and too much hair on her head, do not keep her from looking and being comfortable.

Women in Summer have, at least, partly solved their problem. But what is a man to do?

Somebody this year has invented a strange and interesting collar for men. It is something like the collar of Little Lord Fauntleroy, only it isn't starched. It is something like the collar worn by a sailor, and something like the low-necked dress of a conservative old maid. It is, at least, different. Many men like it.

The other day we observed a fat brother wearing one of these new collars, a baby blue shade. And while he seemed to enjoy it, we did not like it, and decided not to take it up.

We have seen men, especially fat men, wearing trousers made of pongee silk, spreading out more and more toward the top, and finally fastened miraculously by a belt around a big stomach. Will somebody tell us why that belt doesn't slip down? Or is it true that there are hidden suspenders underneath the shirt?

The stout, fat man takes off his coat, but it doesn't seem to make him any cooler. He is pulling at his collar all the time.

And, besides, while he looks reasonable in the morning, in the afternoon, when he goes home, those silk trousers look like a crumpled letter pulled out of a waste-paper basket, and so does he.

He has not solved the problem.

We know two prominent lawyers. The first name of one is Frank, the first name of the other is Samuel. In Summer they both wear solemn black coats, black shoes, black everything. Their coats are heavy cloth; their waistcoats are heavy. They have stiff, tight, starched collars. Yet they always look perfectly cool; not a sign of haste or perspiration. And they work hard. How do they do it?

Their friends say that the fact that they drink only water and eat less meat than would keep a good mouse alive helps to explain. Perhaps it does.

But all of this doesn't settle the question which our reader sends in or suggests.

WHAT SHALL A MAN WEAR TO LOOK SENSIBLE IN HOT SUMMER IN A BEAUTIFUL, WINDSWEPT, SUN-BURNED CITY?

If men could really begin all over again, forgetting the past, they would wear in Summer very thin shirts, without any sleeves or any collar at all. They would wear thin silk trousers, stopping above the knees. Their legs would be bare down to the top of their socks. They would wear low shoes and be really happy.

But there is something psychological in man and something humorous in woman that rebels against the idea of a man with the bald spot appearing in short trousers, no sleeves and a low neck.

It is easy to give good advice to women—exact, precise and unquestionably sound advice—and we do it often.

But we find it very hard to advise men.

Here are three of our leading citizens as they would have appeared had they worn sport shirts. But sport shirts were not invented in the days of their greatness, so they are still conspicuous figures in our history.

Bad World Conditions, Says Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Made War Inevitable

If you listen you will hear, from east to west,
Growing sounds of discontent and deep unrest.
It is just the progress-driven plow of God,
Tearing up the well-worn custom-bounded sod;
Shaping out each old tradition-trodden track
Into furrows, fertile furrows, rich and black.
Oh, what harvests they will yield
When they widen to a field!

They will widen, they will broaden, day by day,
As the progress-driven plow keeps on its way.
It will riddle all the ancient roads that lead
Into palaces of selfishness and greed;
It will tear away the almshouse and the slum
That the little homes and garden plots may come.
Yes, the gardens green and sweet
Shall replace the stony street.

Let the wise man hear the menace that is blent
In this ever-growing sound of discontent.
Let him hear the rising clamor of the race
That the few shall yield the many larger space.
For the crucial hour is coming when the soil
Must be given to or taken back by Toil.
Oh, that mighty plow of God—
Hear it breaking through the sod!

It is useless to waste our vitality and our time in reviling any or all the European forces who have brought on this shameful war. As one who walks about among his fellow men for weeks with the germs of typhoid fever in his system must finally fall a prey to that malady, so the greedy, lustful, power-craving world must fall a prey to war periodically.

Here are some proclamations from the Scriptures regarding war:

Proclaim ye this among the Gentiles: Prepare war, wake up the mighty men, let the men of war draw near, let them come up: beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruning hooks into spears; let the weak say, I am strong. * * * Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe; come, get you down, for the press is full and the oats overflow; for their wickedness is great.—Amos iii, 9, 10, 13.

Nation should rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there shall be famines and pestilence and earthquakes in divers places. * * * And there shall be great tribulation, such as there was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever shall be; and except those days should be shortened there could no flesh be saved; but for the elect's sake those days shall be shortened.—Matt. xxiv, 7, 21, 22.

For thus saith the Lord God of Israel unto me: Take the wine-cup of this fury at my hand, and cause all the nations, to whom I send thee, to drink it. And they shall drink, and be moved, and be mad, because of the sword that I shall send among them.—Jeremiah xxv, 15, 16.

And he shall judge among many people, and rebuke many nations afar off. And they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. But they shall sit every man under his vine and fig tree, and none shall make them afraid.—Micah iv., 3-4.

We may as well face the facts that present conditions were inevitable. The world has been preparing for them many years. Land monopoly has been one of the great causes which brought on this war. On December 29, 1910, shortly after Andrew Carnegie made his gift of ten million dollars to the International Peace Fund, Joseph Fels wrote to him, pointing out the fatal defects of his peace propaganda.

In his letter Mr. Fels said: "You have given ten million dollars to an international peace fund. The object is worthy. The donor's intentions are good. But worthy object and good intentions cannot alone make a gift a real benefaction.

"Donations, no matter how great, can accomplish nothing unless they should be used to remove the fundamental cause of the evils.

"Aggressive warfare is always the result of what appears to be an economic necessity.

"Will the Carnegie fund be used to any extent in abolishing land monopoly, thus checking any possible repetition of successful appeals to commercial cupidity in support of land grabbing schemes abroad? Hardly.

"A gift of ten millions to secure relief from malaria in a swampy district which could not be used to secure the draining of the swamps or the destruction of the mosquitoes would be just as effective as your peace donation."

No attention was paid to Mr. Fels' letter. Meantime Mr. Carnegie's ten million dollars might better have been given to the mosquito fund. Had it been given to aiding Mr. Fels' magnificent work of giving labor access to natural resources the great question of the unemployed in our own land would be nearer solution.

The vacant and the partially used city lots and the valuable mining and agricultural lands held out of use on speculations are causing poverty, unemployment and low wages. The result is under-consumption of manufacturers' products, which manufacturers and merchants are bamboozled into believing can be relieved by forcing the people of weaker nations to purchase.

And here is an old German proverb which is timely just now: "A great war leaves a country with three armies—an army of cripples, an army of mourners, and an army of thieves."
